

NEXT WEEK -- THE HARVEST FESTIVAL WAR CRY.

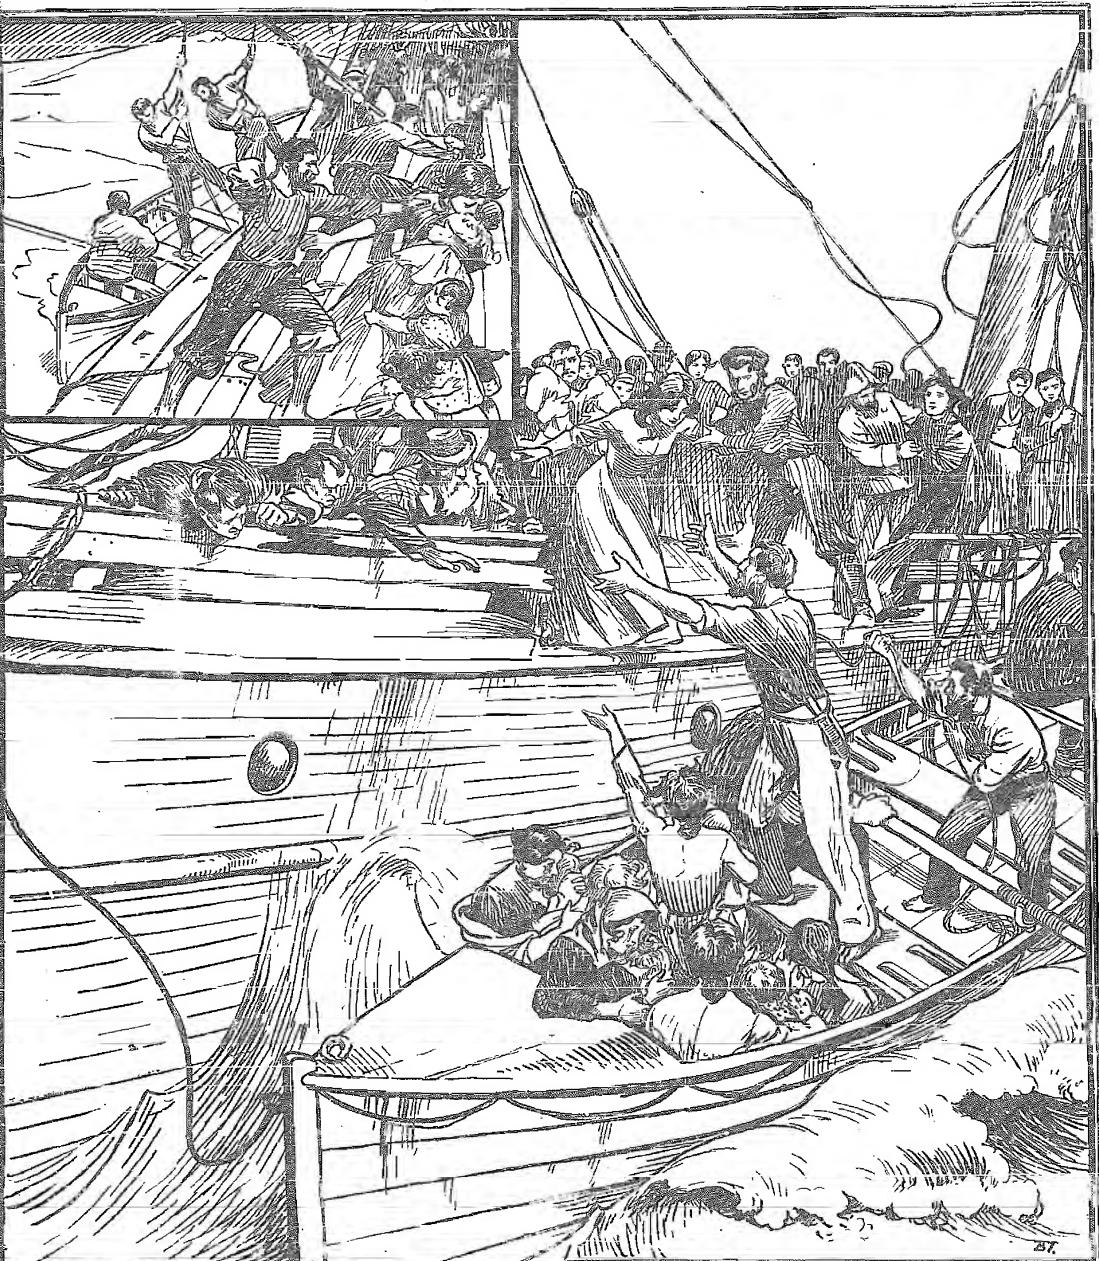

THE
WARP CRY
AND OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE SALVATION ARMY IN CANADA & NEWFOUNDLAND.

WILLIAM BOOTH, GENERAL.
T.B. COOMBS, COMMISSIONER.

22nd Year. No. 50.

TORONTO, SEPTEMBER 15, 1906.

Price 2 Cents.

COURAGE v. COWARDICE.

(See page 2.)

COURAGE v. COWARDICE.

BY BRIGADIER SOUTHLAND.

(To our frontispiece.)

Great calamities invariably prove the means of revealing that which is best and worst in human nature. Some of the most remarkable pictures in the world are those that portray the triumph of flesh and blood over its own dictates, and the almost divine quality of the individual manifested in its seeming contempt for its own safety and finding its supreme satisfaction in contributing to the safety of others—especially if they be weaker, as women and children.

Perhaps no people as a nation have treasured up in the imperishable archives of a grateful memory such a list of heroic deeds as the British. What country can boast such deeds, and such a category of them, as those that adorn the naval, military, and merchant marine service of England? We have it on good authority that the Emperor of Germany had a reproduction of the renowned picture "The Wreck of the Birkenhead," posted in each barracks in his great domain, as an expression of the triumph of courage, discipline, and duty in the face of death itself. The story may be worth repeating. The troopship "Birkenhead" was wrecked half a century ago off the coast of Africa. A number of the men had their wives and children with them. When the vessel struck, and the dreadful impending issue was but too quickly learned, the drums beat to quarters. The men, led by their officers, were mustered in inspection order, and while the boats were lowered, and the women and children—a few of whom were the sole survivors of that dreadful tragedy—were rescued, the ship quickly settled, and those brave fellows looked death in the face—not a man moved from his place—and went down as a solid phalanx as if meeting a visible rather than an invisible foe. We could cite many such cases were it required, but this will serve our purpose.

A recent sea disaster has served to bring out the opposite quality, though we would not apply the accusation to the nation represented by the Captain of the unfortunate vessel. One of the daily papers comments upon the incident as follows:

The official enquiry made by the naval authorities into the wreck of the Sirlo seriously inculpates the captain and crew of the steamer of saving themselves first, abandoning the vessel and causing a panic. The inquiry is expected to lead to severe action on the part of the authorities against those who were responsible for the disaster.

The Austrian Consul at Rio de Janeiro jumped into the sea, wearing a life belt. He then noticed a woman and child near him on the point of going down. He gave up his belt to them and tried to swim ashore. He was almost exhausted when rescued by a fishing vessel.

The story of the Sirlo disaster shows human nature at its best and worst, as usual, in these terrible calamities of the sea. There were scenes of cruelty and cowardice that disgrace manhood, and there were acts of heroism worthy of any poet's pen. Unfortunately the captain lost his presence of mind, if he was not actually guilty of cowardice, and to this must be attributed much of the unworthy aspect of the wild struggle for life that ensued.

The Italian emigrants, with knives in their hands, and without regard for women or children, fought with the greatest brutality for the possession of lifeboats and life buoys. Many were killed or wounded, including several members of the crew who were attacked by emigrants.

A fleet of trawlers providentially happened to be only about one hundred yards away when the Sirlo struck. Notwithstanding the great danger, the skippers of these boats came at once to the rescue, thereby jeopardizing the safety of their own vessels. The survivors of the Sirlo unite in praising the conduct of the captains of the trawlers Joven Miguel and Vincenta Lliceno. The former steamed close to the side of the sinking ship and took off three hundred persons. The crew of the trawler endeavored to sheer off, fearing that their boat would be sunk, whereupon the captain drew his revolver, leveled it at his men and shouted: "As long as it is possible to take off another passenger we will not move."

Reports continue to arrive here of the terrible scenes attending the wreck on Saturday evening, off Hormigas Island, not far from Cape Palos, of the Italian steamer Sirlo, resulting in the loss of over 300 lives. The drowning of the Bishop of Sao Paulo, Brazil, is now attributed to the action of an Argentine passenger, who forcibly took from the Bishop a life belt with which the latter had provided himself.

While the Captain and crew of the ill-fated ship are chargeable to about the most dreadful accusation that can confront an individual, it is only just to say that it was a countryman of his that commanded the fishing vessel which rescued several who were struggling in the sea. He did it at his own peril, and some of his crew were beginning to get the vessel away, when he drew his revolver, threatening to shoot the first man that shirked his duty.

It is, perhaps, unnecessary to demonstrate the lesson to those who enjoy great privileges, and therefore assume great responsibilities, for one measures with the other. Whose responsibilities can be greater than those to whom Christ has entrusted the care, and very largely the eternal destiny, of precious souls? Officers, and even soldiers, of the Army, among others, are thus responsible for the souls that come within the influence of their lives. There will be times and circumstances in which the heroic will have to manifest itself if you are going to do your duty. It may be in some secret act of self-denial or self-abnegation by which the test may come, and the result will demonstrate whether the quality of true courage has its place in your character, or whether baseness has robbed you of this quality, and the fruits of cowardice—manifesting itself in indifference, dodging that which you know you should do, shirking your duty, getting huffed and leaving Jesus and your officers and comrades to make up your loss, and other characteristics that may be mentioned—are apparent in your life. I repeat the test will come to every true soldier of the cross, and the outcome will be declared not only by your conduct on earth, but by the reward of that great day, and by—oh, think of it!—the testimony of the precious souls who were influenced—for good or for bad—through your conduct. Shall their testimony declare YOU a hero?

I see it in the tiniest thing
Of insect life that moves,
Whose perfect form, divinely framed,
Infinite wisdom proves.

Yes, Father, nature doth proclaim
That like Thee there is none;
That all its wonders speak of Thee,
The Omnipresent One. —E.

Pearls.

Our fears are often greater than our foes.
A little pride can cause a great deal of pain.
The face of God takes away the fear of man.
Get into debt, and you will get into trouble.
Respect for the law is the safeguard for liberty.
It will not hurt you to be called a fool unless you are one.

Anger is not converted because you call it "indignation."

You will have little power until you have learnt patience.

Prove Your Armor.

My brother and sister reader, are you saved in sanctified and kept from sin by the untiring power of God? If you have this happy experience, you on the battle-field to the help of the weak against the mighty? The enemy is on every hand, and there are many who call themselves soldiers of Christ, but they are often found wanting. They have not been equipped with the proper armor.

When David volunteered to fight the Philistine warrior, who was a giant in the eyes of his people, we read that Saul armed David with his armor. It put a helmet of brass on his head, a coat of mail on his body, and girded his sword on David's side. When he essayed to go to meet the monster, he found he could not, for he had not provided armor. David put them off him, for he knew better than to trust his life and the victory that was to be won that day in the armor that wicked Saul would have put on him. But David had an armor that they knew not of, praise the Lord! for David's armor—which is ours also. Instead of having on our heads a helmet of brass, as did Saul, we must have a helmet of salvation and a breast-plate of righteousness, and be girded around about with the truth, and have the shield of faith, and our feet shod with peace, and the Word of God in hand as a two-edged sword. Then we shall be able to slay the monster—sin. The battle is the Lord's, and we are sure to win. Let us follow the blood-stained banner, for our Captain leads on before.

"Stand up, stand up for Jesus, ye soldiers of the cross,
Lift high His royal banner, it must not suffer loss;
From victory unto victory, His armies He shall lead,
Till every foe is vanquished, and Christ is Lord indeed."

—John A. Gandy.

Prison Notes.

By Lieut.-Colonel Pugmire.

In company with Mrs. Pugmire and Staff-Capt. Fraser, I had the pleasure of conducting the year's services at the Central Prison and Mercer. At the former place there were about three hundred prisoners present, and apparently they drank in every word that was sung or said, and manifested a keen interest in the service. A number signified their intention to serve God.

The service at the Mercer was especially powerful, and out of forty women present, fully twenty-five declared in favor of Christ.

At a certain Reformatory in Canada, where there are fourteen boys incarcerated, twelve of them are professing Christ. They now desire to be enrolled as Salvation Army soldiers. The officer in charge is seeing the Governor, and it is very likely we shall have a Salvation Army junior corps in the Reformatory itself.

Staff-Capt. Hay conducted an excellent service in the Toronto Jail on Tuesday last. The officials there are most considerate towards the Army, and have long since discovered the good work that is being done right in the jail itself. The prisoners enjoy the services, and all join heartily in the singing.

Adjt. Sims has been deputed to meet the discharged convicts from the Kingston Penitentiary, charged convicts from the Kingston Penitentiary, and already a number have been helped by the Adjutant.

Adjt. Collier reports good meetings in the New Westminster Penitentiary. Services are held regularly. The Adjutant anticipates opening in the fall. The Police Court work out there similar to what we have in Toronto, St. John, Halifax, Regina, and Moose Jaw.

A new Penitentiary has been opened in Edmonton, Alberta, and the Inspectors of Prisons have been good enough to give me the same privilege there as at other penitentiaries, namely, of visiting the institution and interviewing the prisoners. A monthly Discharge Sheet will also be sent us, giving the names of those who will be discharged for the coming month.

We shall be glad if all those who are responsible for jail meetings throughout the Dominion will send in their reports promptly. This is very important.

With a population of one hundred million souls, and territory comprising the world's surface, tear-bearer Russia stands forth from among the nations of commanding interest. She has been tried as by fire, as she emerged from her tribulations, and she may be given strength to salvation.

A new—and we trust a happy—era has begun. The electric thrill of liberty has come to heart. The day of freedom and irresistible impulse has been proved to be righteously.

"My God bless me, in conjunction with the Empress and the Duma, and may this day prove to be the turning-point in Russia's moral outlook, and the recovery of her lost powers.

"Go to the world to which I have called you, and justify worthily the trust of your Czar, and your country. God help me and you."

So spoke Nicholas II. to his first Parliament. To these sentiments every Salvationist adds a fervent "Amen!"

At present the Army is not at work in Russia proper, though for many years it has carried on its Soul-Converting Operations on the frontier. Already our readers are familiar with the gratifying advances made in Finland. We ardently long for the day to come when the trumpet of salvation shall wave in hundreds of the cities, towns, and villages, from St. Petersburg, when over the trackless siberian forests, upon the great mountains, beyond the great rivers, where fertile grain belts and the glad songs of thanksgiving emanipated people.

The Salvation Army finds in Jesus Christ: "The poor have I always with me, but me to comfort them." It is, therefore, the hearts of many of our people that the passion burns when they think of those who constitute no less than this great nation.

Sorry though their physical condition is not good, their condition is not without redeeming features. It was a great day for the Moujik when the Act of Emancipation was set free from the shackles. Not only so, but they were given 100 acres of land for their support, and the villages in which they provided with an average of 100 acres.

The land is still being cultivated, extending over a period of years, tillers of the ground, mulching hard for a bare soil, that the Army would

With the Mess

Their condition is often desolate and unchangeable, suu to unhook the ice galloping townships the semi-residuum of the precious and rude outfit that Ivan wears, bread. There is no iron for his harness; so the other and sister reader, are you saved and kept from sin by the unfailing power? If you have this happy experience at the battle-field to the help of the Lord mighty? The enemy is on every hand; are many who call themselves soldiers, but they are often found wanting. We have been equipped with the proper arms. David volunteered to fight the Philistines who was a giant in the eyes of his fellowmen, but Saul armed David with his armor, a helmet of brass on his head, a coat of mail, and girded his sword on David's side, essayed to go to meet the monster, but he could not, for he had not proved to avoid put them off him, for he knew better than his life and the victory that was that day in the armor that wicked spirit put on him. But David had an arm he knew not of, praise the Lord! for David's spirit is ours also. Instead of having a helmet of brass, as did Saul, we now have a helmet of salvation and a breastplate of brass, and he girded around about with the shield of faith, and our feet shod with the Word of God in hand as a sword. Then we shall be able to slay this sin. The battle is the Lord's, and we are n. Let us follow the blood-stained banner Captain leads on before.

Prove Your Armor.

stand up for Jesus, ye soldiers of the Cross!

His royal banner, it must not suffer loss, unto victory. His armies He shall lead, foe is vanquished, and Christ is Lord in us!"

—John A. Gally.

Prison Notes.

By Lieut.-Colonel Pugmire.

On with Mrs. Pugmire and Staff-Capt. had the pleasure of conducting the scenes at the Central Prison and Mercer's place there were about three hundred present, and apparently they drank in that was sung or said, and manifested rest in the service. A number signified to serve God.

At the Mercer was especially power of forty women present, fully twenty in favor of Christ.

In Reformatory in Canada, where there boys incarcerated, twelve of them are Christ. They now desire to be enrolled Army soldiers. The officer in charge is governor, and it is very likely we shall see Army junior corps in the Reformatory.

Hay conducted an excellent service in jail on Tuesday last. The officials just considerate towards the Army, and once discovered the good work that is right in the jail itself. The prisoners' services, and all join heartily in the

has been deputed to meet the districts from the Kingston Penitentiary, a number have been helped by the reports good meetings in the New Penitentiary. Services are held there. The Adjutant anticipates opening up work out there similar to what we do, St. John, Halifax, Regina and penitentiary has been opened in Edmonton and the Inspectors of Prisons have enough to give me the same privileges as other penitentiaries, namely, of visiting and interviewing the prisoners. A large sheet will also be sent us, giving those who will be discharged for glad if all those who are responsible throughout the Dominion will report promptly. This is very

THE KINGDOM OF THE Czar.

A Prospective Field for the Army.

With a population of one hundred and thirty million souls, and territory comprising one-sixth of the world's surface, tear-balled, blood-drenched Russia stands forth from among the nations an object of commanding interest. Our hearts have ached for her in her tribulations, and now, having been tried as by fire, as she emerges from the terrible days of war, revolt, and anarchy, we pray that she may be given strength to work out her own salvation.

A new—and we trust a happier—era is dawning. The electric thrill of liberty has passed from heart to heart. The day of freedom is at hand, and an irresistible impulse has been given to truth and righteousness.

"May God bless me, in conjunction with the Council of the Empire and the Duma, in the work before us; and may this day prove the reinvigoration of Russia's moral outlook, and the reincarnation of her lost powers.

"Go to the work to which I have summoned you, and justify worthy the trust of your Czar and your country. God help me and you."

So spoke Nicholas II. to his first Parliament. To these sentiments every Salvationist adds a fervent "Amen!"

At present the Army is not at work in Russia proper, though for many years it has carried on its

Soul-Converting Operations

on the frontier. Already our readers are familiar with the惊人的 advances made in Finland. We ardently long for the day to come when the tricolor of salvation shall wave in hundreds of the cities, towns, and villages, from St. Petersburg to Vladivostock, and when over the trackless steppes, through the mighty forests, upon the inland seas, across the great mountains, beyond the dreary wastes, as well as where fertile grain fields stretch, shall be heard the glad song of thanksgiving from the lips of an emancipated people.

The Salvation Army finds its charter in the words of Jesus Christ: "The poor have the Gospel preached to them." It is, therefore, not surprising that in the hearts of many of our officers the spirit of compassion burns when they think of the Russian peasants, who constitute no less than eighty per cent. of this great nation.

Sorry though their plight is from certain standpoints, their condition is not without its strong redeeming features. It was a great day for Ivan the Moujik when the Act of Emancipation came into force. By this measure fifty millions of peasants were set free from the shackles of serfdom. Not only so, but they were provided with 350,000,000 acres of land for their support. They took over the villages in which they lived, each family being provided with an average of thirty-three acres.

The land is still being paid for by instalments, extending over a period of years. It is to these tillers of the ground, multitudes of whom are struggling hard for a bare subsistence in a vitiated soil, that the Army would come.

With the Message of Hope.

Their condition is often deplorable. In winter all is desolate and unattractive. Then comes the burning sun to unlock the ice-gates and set the floods galloping towards the sea, carrying with them a residuum of the precious soil. It is with a very rude outfit that Ivan now commences his fight for bread. There is no iron for his plough, his hatchet, and his harness; so the work he puts into the ground is bad, as he well knows at harvest time. The scarcity of horses, too, means bad farming. Horses cost money, and Ivan lives on the verge of bankruptcy, so in many cases he dispenses with them. When the lean years come, with famine and its attendant horrors, he stands in need of a brotherly hand-grip, and more.

The nobles, the merchants, and the burghers have souls to save, and where possible, efforts would be made to win those of them who are unconverted; but the object of our pioneer missionaries would doubtless be to bring the peasants to Christ.

It must not be by any means supposed that Ivan is a semi-barbarian. Far from it. He is, moreover, very religious. Religion forms a not unimportant part of his day-to-day existence. Though your educated Russian may sometimes or even contempt, this can never be said of your

Treat Religion with Cold' Politeness,

Siberian Women in their "Sarafans."

Russian peasant. In his one-roomed hut is the sacred corner for his highly-prized Ikon. Here, too, is a dim, green night-light burning before it.

Watch Ivan the Moujik as he goes to make his confession, not in the privacy of the box, mark you, but in the open church. There he stands, with bared and bowed head and hands clasped, while from between his fingers hangs his peasant's cap. Though he is the picture of contrition, he is by no means "under the thumb" of the priest. Draw near and listen.

"Have you stolen anything, got drunk, beaten your wife unduly, or told a lie?" enquires the priest.

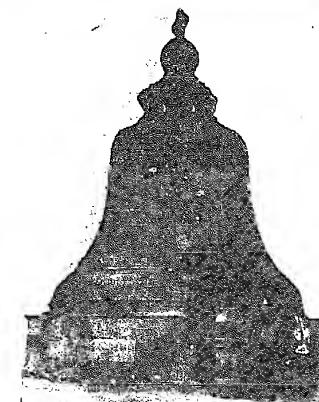

Between the locks of hair that ramble over his brow one can see his twinkling eyes. Presently he raises his head slowly, and cautiously replies:

"Batoosha, I am a sinner!"

"Quite true, my son," answers the priest, with a smile playing about the corners of his bearded mouth. No further censure, if such it can be called, falls from the lips of his spiritual adviser, so, while Ivan kisses the Testament extended to him, the priest lays the end of his stole upon his head, and pronounces the absolution.

The Russian peasant is said to hold the European record for dirt. This is a gross lie. Whether he believes that cleanliness is next to godliness is as open to question concerning him as of many of the poorest of Great Britain or other countries. His confession of faith may be summed up thus: "I believe in God, in the Czar, the demi-gods of my native land, in charms, charity and steam baths."

The weekend bath is part of his religion. It is a festival. The pilgrimage to the Iza, which every village possesses is made. Here, once a week, the goddess of cleanliness reigns. It is an enthralling sight to see a crowd of heavily-bearded moujiks

The Great Bell of Moscow.

puing and steaming together after the immersion. Though the peasant's cabin, clothes, and countenance may be in need of cleansing, his body is clean.

Much could be said concerning the elaborate system by which Russia is governed. From the Governor-General we must skip down to the peasant official who is paid a nominal sum by the community, and wears a metal badge of pewter or bronze, according to rank. Usually he bears his responsibilities lightly.

Here is proof of this. A Russian gentleman, while driving along a road in a remote district, observed a peasant moving along with difficulty. On getting nearer to him, he found that the man was in irons. Shortly afterwards, on reaching a roadside kabak, he found the village policeman drinking a bottle of vodka,

"Where is your prisoner?" enquired the gentleman. "Are you not afraid he will give you the slip?"

"What!" was the answer; "Stefanovich give us the slip! Why, he is a neighbor of ours, and we have got to take him to the lock-up, poor fellow. He would never pay us such a trifle as that. Only, he got along so slowly that we were obliged to leave him behind!"

In Russia, as elsewhere,

Drink Has Claimed Multitudes of Victims, and it would be the duty of our officers to wage relentless war against it. Eleven years ago in some Governments a State monopoly of spirits was introduced. Later it became much more wide-spread. The kalah is now tabooed. Ivan is expected to purchase his sealed bottle of vodka at the State public-house, and consume its contents in his hut, under the dim, green light of his lion-lamp.

The idea is an improvement upon the old order of things, under which the peasant was allowed to drink himself into insensibility, and was then rolled into the open air. Yet it is not perfect in practice. Ivan, finding that he cannot drink in the public-house, buys his bottle of vodka and knocks its seal off on the lintel of the establishment, and drinks his fill in the street. Good and earnest people are doing their best to fight this evil. In almost every province and district temperance committees are at work, and many efforts, such as providing the people with decent recreations and the like, are being put forth to wean them from this curse.

What Many Observe.

It does not take a person with much brains or religion to find fault with others, but it takes a person of grace and ability to show by example how it should be done.

The man who continually uses the plural we, such as: we're cold, we're dry, we're not right, etc., seldom gets anything better than what he talks about; but when the we is changed to I, and he cries out: "I am conscious, brethren, that I am not right, and am going to get right," he soon gets something to appreciate.

The man that got blessed in the last meeting is anxious to get blessed in the next; but those who have received no special blessing from God for six months, slip through the service without thinking of looking for a blessing.

WORK ON.

Work on, work on for Jesus,
We toilers in His field;
Not lost in vain ye labor,
The seed man sown is sown,
Till God now ye do forth weeping,
He shall return again,
And come with gladness bearing
Your stores of golden grain.

Work hopefully for Jesus.
Remember as ye toil,
That e'er so stony places,
Are spots of fruitful soil.
Work constantly for Jesus,
Think of His work for you;
For such a loving Master,
How small the moat we do.

Go seek the hosts that perish,
Toss 'em in the road of sin,
Go tell the Good's story,
Go seek some soul to win.
Go, not in self-importance,
But strong in Christ thy Lord,
His strength can know no failing,
And sure is His reward.

THE PRAYING LEAGUE.

Weekly Motto: "On, give thanks unto the Lord." Prayer Topic: Pray for the success of the Harvest Festival effort.

Sunday, Sept. 24.—Baptized by Fire—Acts xxi. 17-34.
Monday, Sept. 25.—Paul's Testimony—Acts xxi. 15-26; xxi. 21-25.
Tuesday, Sept. 26.—A Roman Citizen's Rights—A. D. xxi. 17-36; xxi. 26.
Wednesday, Sept. 27.—The Conspiracy—Acts xxii. 1-12.
Thursday, Sept. 28.—The Governor—Acts xxii. 27-33; A. D. xxi. 1-12.
Friday, Sept. 29.—Convicted—Acts xxv. 1-27; xxi. 1-12.
Saturday, Sept. 30.—The Prisoner—Acts. xxv. 10-25.

By Mrs. Blanche Johnson, Praying League
Secretary.

It is a Place of Service.

Therefore are they before the throne of God and serve Him day and night in His temple.

The idea that the redeemed of heaven will spend an endless eternity encamped on a rainbow singing Psalms with palms in their hands has almost passed into antiquity. As we know, not the condition of the spiritual world, we can form no idea of its employments and pastime; but it would seem from our text that there will be some form of service, that the good Father would not confine the active brains to inertia. A writer upon the subject has said:

"Are we likely to know much of it? What does a child at play know of the employments of the man? Such portions of them as are merely external and material he may take in and represent in his sport; but the work and the anxiety of the student at his book, or the man of business at his desk, these are of necessity entirely hidden from the child. And so it is onward through the advancing stages of life. Of each of them it may be said, 'We know not with what we must serve the Lord until we come thither.'

I know there are many who are weary with the care and responsibilities of this life, whose brain and hand and body long for rest—complete, absolute rest. Like the poor mother we heard of whose little ones were discussing heaven and deciding, with childish faith and simplicity, what they would like to do there.

"Mamma, what would you like to do when you go to Heaven?" they asked.

"Oh, my children, if I may, I shall ask the Lord Jesus to let me lie down for a thousand years to rest."

Poor, tired mother! It was very natural, and to many the idea of rest is the all-absorbing thought of future happiness. Well, perhaps it will be so—but we shall not carry these earth-worn bodies with us when we go home. We understand not the mystery. But we shall all be changed "in a moment," and while the blessed dead shall "rest from their labors," there shall be a glad, new service to perform for the King.

Any way, we may be safe in believing that the activities of heaven will be the spontaneous outburst of the gladness within us. It may just be that the cherished, unfinished human plan of loving endeavor may have some opportunity of perfecting itself in an incense of effort poured out at His feet.

It is a Place of Song.

"And they sing, as it were, a new song." How few have sounded the depths or scaled the heights compassed by music. If the compositions of a Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Handel have power to stir the human soul so that men forget all else in their rapture, what effect will the music of the angels have upon the citizens of the City of Song. "They sing a new song," David said. "He hath put a new song in my mouth." The song of Heaven we do not know, but it will be a song born of our new environments as David's song was of the new conditions of his soul.

What an august company of musicians form that choir—David, the sweet singer; Montgomery, Isaac Watts, Mrs. Sigourney, Charles Wesley, P. P. Bliss, and a host of other Gospel singers. There will be no discordant notes to destroy its purest melody, no truant to mar its sweetest cadence; it will be a song of praise, adoration, and thanksgiving unto Him who hath loved us.

Oh, the influence of music upon earth. It has touched hearts inaccessible to any other influence. It has soothed the suffering child to sleep and stilled the passion in the angry breast. Music—blessed, divinely-inspired song—as it has been lifted in the street or the meadow, on the mountain or by the seashore, has arrested the attention of the godless and indifferent, and created thoughts of God and goodness. We shall all want to hear the music of the choristers of the sky chanting their anthems and hallelujahs. Many of earth have been deprived of the blessing of speech and the faculty of hearing, but there all will be enthralled by the music as streams of glory bear it from shore to shore. Beethoven's deafness will be healed, and he will bear greater music than his own. Those whose lives have had little music here will bathe in its rapture there.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Hope (nee Miss F. McCausland), League of Mercy Workers in Spokane's Corps.

A little band of League of Mercy workers passed from ward to ward and cot to cot in Home of Incurables, singing the sweet, comforting songs of the cross. "Sing to me, please; just one hymn," pleaded a poor woman who was afflicted with a cancer upon her face. It was against the rules of the institution for us to enter the ward for fear of infection, but the trembling patient crept to the door and we sang a few verses of the "Land of pure delight where saints immortal reign." A hot tear from those poor, cancer-stricken eyes burned a spot upon my hand, and her gratitude was bounded. By the next week's visit she had gone to hear the better song.

Oh, what a glorious company—innumerable—the trumpeters with their trumpets, the harpers with their harps, anthems taking up the mighty roll of anthem, chorus joining chorus, the voices that trembled here, the voices of the children, the martyrs, the apostles, the prophets, song upon song, wave upon wave, rolling up in a transporting climax of hallelujahs into the heart of God.

A Diving Dress with Arms—A Guest in Invention.

This diving dress is the invention of the Rescuers of the Italian Navy. It is made of arms, a hand, and a head and shoulders. There is also an electric lamp and a ventilator, which is coming up after an hour's work, at a rate of 150 feet.

New Ontario Division Notes.

Major Rawling Tours the Old Lindsay Bldg. accompanied by the Cashier.

We left Orillia on Saturday afternoon for a week-end. We were at this over twenty-two years ago. The Major was 16. His rehearsal of warlike incidents is intensely interesting. Old friends were glad to see him. Their welcome was warm, and their love for the Major and Mrs. W. Peacock, Jr., was just as warm. The meetings were just one dear soul volunteered at night for Capt. Brass and Capt. Aspinwall. Capt. Brass loved by the people of Orillia. Monday night we journeyed to Fenelon Falls, a very interesting meeting was produced by the great beat a rifle. A band was present and gave the Major a warm reception. We accompanied to the Falls Capt. D. H. McLean, Capt. Dauberhill, who were stationed at Peacock's for so long. They, too, were welcomed in a proper S. A. style. Lieut. Birrell and Butte in charge.

Kinnmont. Tuesday brings us to this far circle. Lieut. Croswell all smiles, met us at the depot and escorted us to his palatial home. Things have been rather hard at Kinnmont but "there's a better day coming on." The day was terrific on the outside of our visit, but had a fairly good time nevertheless. The Major's address was listened to by a fairly good crowd. Lieuts. Boyson and Riddiford, as well as Capt. Peacock, assisted in this service.

And what can I say of our visit to Lindsay? We were certainly made to feel at home by the officers. Lindsay has some brighter days. We're a nice crowd on the streets who listened to the story of Calvary. A very generous (?) crowd to honor, as well as his obligation to His Maker. The Dauberhills have just taken charge, and we are looking for better things. The heat was intense here, too, but a fair crowd gathered to welcome the Major, who had been here F. O. in days gone by.

Thursday we returned to D. H. Q. after a most trying trip. The program had been full—salvation meetings, census meetings, property inspection, interviewing Candidates, Corps-Cadets, and "show bees," etc., etc.

Orillia. Mrs. Hodgdon has been bravely holding out at Orillia in the Adjutant's absence and D. O. came home just in time to render noble assistance at the home corps for the Sunday. Good will were the order of the day. One soul in the effort for salvation. Daddy Miles of Barrie, with us and assisted in the meetings. He is a grand old warrior. In company with the Cadets and a few more of the comrades he had a regular old-time big Sunday afternoon.

Notes.

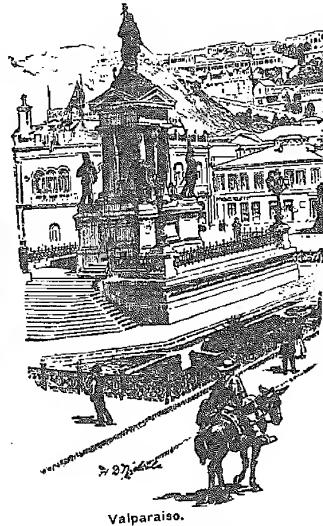

We have just learned with deep regret of the promotion to Glory of Brother Harry Reynolds of the Barrie corps. He has suffered a great loss but it is over now. He died a triumphant death. Comrades, do not forget the bereaved ones—Sgt. Major and Mrs. Reynolds and family. They have our earnest prayers and sincere sympathy.

Harvest festival is all the "go" now. Our Divisional target is only $250 more than last year but we are in for victory.

The D. O. leaves D. H. Q. this week, accompanied by the Cashier, for a 700 mile trip, and will not be back until the end of the month. During this tour he will examine two fledgling corps—Capt. Jordan and Capt. Elliott at Barrie, and Capt. Travis and Porter at Sibburt. Capt. J. S. Dan brings an officer into the Division, while Capt. Travis carries one off to the Pacific Province. It's a great world we live in. The Capt. and Minnie Wedge became one at Midland on the 3rd. Brigadier Howell did the deed. God bless you, my comrade, pray—The Rambler.

THE VOICE

W loudly has the voice of Omnipotence resounded through the earth during the past few days. To say nothing of the railway disasters, wrecks, and catastrophes of various kinds, and unexpected ways, there has been the fearful nations of earthquakes calling out in sonorous voices, "I am God, and beside Me there is none." as if the ears of men had become deaf to a voice that would rather speak in terms of goodness and mercy. But as it was in the days of Noah, so now men presume upon God's mercy. He is compelled—even for man's well-being—to visit the race with severe chastisement. We do not consider the visitation that has overtaken San Francisco and Valparaiso as being na-

Valparaiso.

Similarly a judgment upon a place or a people. God is not a whimsical being, moved by a patty. And what can I say of our visit to Lindsay? We were certainly made to feel at home by the officers. Lindsay has some brighter days. We're a nice crowd on the streets who listened to the story of Calvary. A very generous (?) crowd to honor, as well as his obligation to His Maker. The Dauberhills have just taken charge, and we are looking for better things. The heat was intense here, too, but a fair crowd gathered to welcome the Major, who had been here F. O. in days gone by.

The story of Valparaiso, with its wrecked buildings, its havoc, its sorrow, its losses, tells you that God is still all-powerful, and that it is with Him you have to deal. About 3,000 souls ushered into eternity, and over one hundred million dollars lost in property, and the disfigurement of an earthly paradise, surely reminds us in an unmistakable sense of the puny and futile part the fool plays in the affairs of the world.

We call the following description of this earth paradise from the observation of a recent visitor to Valparaiso:

We passed through Santiago by rail and went straight to Valparaiso, its port, as Malcolm had said, where requiring immediate attention.

I had found few prettier subjects for my pen than this same city of Valparaiso—the vale of Paradise—as we rowed out and sat resting on our oars in the harbor next day. In actual words, it cannot better describe it than in those of a young American girl, whose article on Valparaiso we have read:

"This city of hills, its houses resting tier upon tier, with their myriad of sparkling lights, reminds one of the facade of some immense public building with its gala-day illuminations."

"As the city has grown the rocky cliffs have terraced; irregular rows of houses of different shapes and sizes rise up against the precipice, would seem as if a convulsion of nature had placed them there, and that a volcanic eruption had sent them tumbling into the sea. These reached by winding roads, which the tradition led upon the mountain sides. Electric light

THE VOICE OF GOD.

w loudly has the voice of Omnipotence revered through the earth during the past few years. To say nothing of the railway disasters, recks, and catastrophes of various kinds, and unexpected ways, there has been the fearful actions of earthquakes calling out in sonorous tones, "I am God, and beside Me there is none else," as if the ears of men had become deaf to a voice that would rather speak in terms of truth and mercy. But as it was in the days of Noah, so now men presume upon God's mercy.
He is compelled—even for man's well-being—to threaten with severe chastisement.

placed upon the cliffs, and a street car line encircles the city."

It was in Valparaiso that we made our first acquaintance with the fair sex as street car conductors. Women conductors, in dark flannel uniforms, white aprons, and sailor hats, receive you fares. The same custom prevails throughout the cities of Chile. The experiment was first tried when all the able-bodied men were engaged in the war with Peru, and so satisfactory were the new conductors, to both the company and the citizens, that they have continued to fill these positions ever since. Valparaíso has a population of less than 200,000. Not a great city in point of numbers, nevertheless a city where one sees many indications of progress.

Three Life Sketches.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE PRISON BRIGADE OF OTTAWA I.

Concert Sergeant Major, Eisbach

was converted through the instrumentality of two lady Evangelists at the village of Ironside, on Oct. 8th, 1887, and five years later, entered the ranks of the Salvation Army. At that time Ensign Ethel Galt was in charge of the corps, and Bro. French has, therefore, had about fourteen years' experience in the service of God in the Army and five years spent for God in the Methodist Church. He has held various positions in the corps, being Secretary for nearly six years. Resigning last winter, he was appointed Convert Sergeant-Major, and is also War Cry Correspondent, and on Capt. Galt's leaving Ottawa, was sent to fill the Captain's place in charge of the new work just opened in Ottawa, in which he is deeply interested.

卷之三

Sergeant James King

hails from Highgate, London, Eng., and was eight years a soldier in that corps. Through some evil influence he was led away from God on coming to Canada one year and four months ago; but he was not left alone in his wanderings from the right path. God's Holy Spirit strove mightily with him, and about one year ago we had the joy of seeing him restored to God again. He was appointed Magazine Sergeant last summer, selling such periodicals as the Musical Salvationist, etc. He is one of the first three to visit the jail, and is a valuable assistant in this work, which he loves very much, and is a faithful comrade.

and prosperity. Of palatial homes there are many and buildings with splendidly designed facades. For Valparaiso is the chief seaport of Chile. Banks, warehouses, merchants' establishments greet one on every hand.

But the most striking feature of the place is its English aspect. You hear English spoken on every side. There are English sign-boards on the hotel's English ships in the harbor; English shop-keepers at the counters. A group of English girls stand gazing out across the blue bay. Take the English and German out of Chile—and well, that is a photo of life the Chileans would rather not have mentioned. The "foreign element" in the cities of North America—what a different suggestion the words brought to my mind! But here in South America the foreign element was the one to us most familiar.

We stood that evening at sunset on one of the many quays that line the crescent-shaped harbor and watched the passengers coming ashore in small boats from the mole. This mole is known as the Muelle Fiscal, and is provided with excellent hydraulic machinery for hauling trucks, and working cranes. The mole is, however, unequal to the traffic of the port, and lighters have to be also used.

We had taken lodgings in an English hotel. Shortly after midnight I awoke with a start, the white moon staring me in the face through the window.

"Hist!"
"Malcolm! Awake, man! What was it?"
"Don't be so nervous, laddie. Nothing but a bit of an earthquake. These are common in China. Think of the ones we had in Japan."
And Malcolm turned over with a thud on the mattress, and sighed as if he had disposed of the

Sellish Solution-Seeking

To be saved means, not to get something, but to give everything. When we have given ourselves and all that we have to Christ and His service, we are giving it true more than we can ever give.

receive, it is true, more than we can ever give, but if that is our chief purpose in so doing we have not caught the spirit of Christ's message. Getting saved merely for what we can get out of it for ourselves is a selfish and unworthy way to seek salvation. But to come to Christ in joyous acceptance of His salvation because only in Him can we live a life that counts, is to seek salvation for what will make us worth to others, and that is what Christ wants us to think most about.

If you would shine as the Stars, you must live near the Sun.

Sergt.-Major A. French (standing), Sergt. James Kirk, Sergt. James Hagan.

there he saw his miserable state of soul and came to God and found pardon, and was enrolled a Staff-Capt. Perry left for his next appointment. He is Orderly Sergeant, and is indeed a true Christian comrade, and is also a pioneer of the Prison Work, to which he is earnestly devoted.

It does not matter what the fetter is made of, the question is, does it bind?

It is a fatal thing if a man tries to carry over his old lies into the new life.

Young People's Page

ARSENIC:

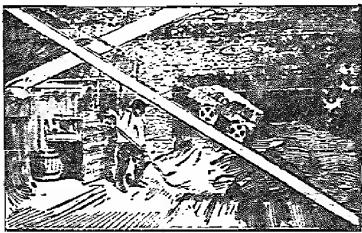

Its History and Manufacture.

The Story of a Dangerous Industry—And How it Became Remunerative.

A year or two ago there were in Cornwall, in the very centres of districts which travelers visit for the sake of their rustic beauty, places which were the most desolate to look at that one could imagine or ever dream of. It was as if here and there gigantic moles had wantonly devastated the smiling champaign. In the midst of the finest fields one came suddenly (says a magazine writer) on an area or desolation, with upheaval of huge mounds of earth, of monstrous barrows of stones. Dotted about and around were cottages and the larger buildings from which in former days, it is evident, these operations were directed.

All around these monstrous rubbish-heaps was silence. The cottages were deserted, the buildings had fallen in. The roofs had built their nests in the tall chimneys. Nobody ever came near these deserted mines, for though there was still abundance of mineral wealth in many of them, the freedom of Cornwall could not compete with the slaves of the Straits Settlements, and the Phoenicians went elsewhere for their tin.

Of late, however, there has been a change. These places are no longer given over to silence. A busy stir is there. On the mounds have appeared men, women, and children, peering, groping, picking, piling up. To look at them one would say: Gleaners at work. That is what they are. These men and women and children are gleaning. Not, indeed, for the yellow ears which give bread, but for the white stones which give poison.

Figuring a mine with miners.

They are searching the burrows for white muriate, which the technical men call mineral mephisto or arsenical pyrites. Formerly this went to the rubbish heap, and where attention was paid to it, it was only as a sign of the ore which was to be found lower down. These gleaners, in fact, are gleaning for poison; they are in search of arsenic, the wickedest and most infamous of mineral poisons.

Arsenic has always been the favorite poison of the murderer. It mixes readily with food—unlike many other poisons, it has no odor, and no taste beyond a sweetish savor, which is pleasant rather than disagreeable. That it is insoluble, that it can never be eliminated from the body, and that its traces are as visible, as a cause of death, are circumstances which, fortunate for the ends of justice, "Messieurs les Assassins" have overlooked.

To the chemist, however, to the industrial, to the husbandman, the word has a happier sound. In the hands of Fowler the thing became a medicine which has restored vigor to the blood and color to the cheeks to thousands of green-sick sufferers. Its other uses are many. It is the active principle in sheep-dip. Cooper, the famous sheep-dip manufacturer, is the largest consumer of arsenic in the world, and uses over a thousand tons a year.

To sheep-infesting vermin, Cornwall and Devon owe a great debt, and the lords of the manor, adventurers and tributaries alike, had reason to bless what elsewhere met with anathema. The Colorado beetle gave to arsenic, which till then had been considered rather a troublesome refuse, a big commercial value, and it was at that time that, now about fifteen years ago, the first arsenic works were erected. This was in the Calstock district in Devonshire, where the various mines—namely Devon Great Consols, Holmbush, Okel Tor, Coolie works, Gawton and Westlake—until recently have been producing about six hundred tons of arsenic a month.

Of late this production has greatly diminished. Thus Devon Great Consols, which formerly produced 250 tons of arsenic a month, now yields only a hundred; Okel Tor and Holmbush and Gawton nothing, whereas formerly they supplied month; Westlake yields only twenty-five tons in lieu of a hundred tons, and Coombe about thirty tons instead of the same quantity. This failure of what was the main supply of arsenic in the world has had a double effect. It has greatly raised the price of the mineral, and it has set people all over Cornwall hunting for the precious muriate, whilst at the tin mines the calcining of the ores now serves two excellent purposes instead of one.

England, however, has practically the world's monopoly of arsenic, and when I say England, I mean Devon and Cornwall. If Africa can boast a Diamond King, England has the Arsenic King, for there lives in Cornwall a gentleman, representing a company of manufacturers, who, at times, has all the arsenic in the world, or most of it, in his hands. Not many months ago this gentleman held £60,000 worth of the crystalline stuff.

What is arsenic? Arsenic is soon—white soot. Refined arsenic is the soot of soot—that is to say, it is the soot of crude arsenic—which is the soot of the ores of muriate. The stones, or ores, as they come from the mines are crushed by stamps, mainly driven by water-power, to the consistency of sand or gravel. Muriate is usually less finely crushed than the ores, which are to be treated first. This sand or gravel is then shoveled into a kiln or furnace.

In some of these kilns the bottom revolves very slowly, by water-power, between two coal fires, so that each part of the mass is in turn subjected to the same degree of roasting. These kilns are known as the Brunton Calciners. The bottoms, or beds, which are convex and circular, measure fifteen or sixteen feet in diameter, and revolve from five to ten revolutions an hour. In the roof of the furnace are fixed "flukes," or cast-iron plates at an angle of about forty-five degrees, which plough the ore outwards as it is brought against them by the revolution of the bed. In this way every part of the mass is equally roasted. These calciners can deal with four to five tons of ore every twenty-four hours, at a cost of from one and a half to two hundredweight of coal, and two shillings for labor for every ton of ore treated.

The manufacture of the poison is terrible in its simplicity. One wet afternoon I had taken refuge in a Cornish cottage, where I fell in with a gentleman who is largely interested in this industry, and who gave me the idea of writing this article.

"It is the simplest thing in the world," he said. "Look here is a piece of arsenical stone," and he produced a glittering pebble. "Well, with nothing but that stone, the kitchen fire, and that shovel there, I can produce enough arsenic to kill every man, woman, and child in this cottage in a few minutes."

So he put his piece of white muriate in the fire, and held the shovel over it, so that the fumes should strike it as they rose, and there, true enough, after a few minutes, was a deposit which, when scraped, came away in the form of greyish powder. "That's arsenic," he said. "Would you like to taste it?"

Arsenic, then, is the soot which is deposited by the fumes which rise from the roasting of arsenical ores. If these fumes were allowed to escape up a long chimney direct from the furnace, that chimney would soon become choked with the white soot, but much would escape with the rest, and wreak devastation abroad. Arsenic fumes are very dangerous to vegetation as well as to life, and accordingly, even when this soon had little or no commercial value, care was taken by the manufacturers to avoid the penalties of the Alkali and other Acts, to allow as little arsenic as possible to escape with the smoke from their furnaces.

In those days a virtue was made of a law-imposed

Exercise the legs.

necessity; now this virtue is its own exceeding reward. The manufacturer to-day is even more anxious than the factory-inspector that no arsenic should escape with the smoke from the chimney, and such are now the methods of condensation of this smoke that this result is practically obtained.

The smoke from the calciners is exceedingly allowed to escape only after it has deposited every atom—as far as is possible—of its arsenic soot. To produce this effect, it passes through numerous chambers before it reaches the chimney through which it issues forth into the open. Seen from afar, these chambers or flues suggest one rememiring with what poison its belly charged, the comparison will only be the more impressive.

The number of these chambers varies, as to their length. Sometimes they extend over a hundred feet.

The series of chambers forms one long zigzag passage, broken at intervals by a wall extending almost its whole width, starting now from one side, now from the other. Each chamber is from four feet to five feet six inches high, and from three to four feet wide. Entrance is obtained into the first chamber—for the purpose of cleaning out the ashes of arsenic or soot—through an opening in the wall which is closed up with an iron plate carefully plastered over round the edges. Arsenic has a great affinity for oxygen, so that the slightest crack in the walls will serve for leakage.

The chambers are opened at irregular periods. In those nearest the furnace the greatest quantity of soot is found. In those nearest the stack or chimney there is sometimes a justicore on the floor. The crude arsenic is often taken out by the shovel and heaped up in a shed. At one time I saw a huge heap of the bluish-white soot. "There's enough arsenic there," said my guide, "to poison a whole city." The bluish tint which I noticed proceeded from the carbon and other extraneous matter, but this heap contained at least seventy per cent. of pure arsenic, and was worth, as I stood, from £17 to £18 the ton.

It is interesting to notice in spite of the terribly dangerous character of this poison, only one death has been recorded at the mines for a long period, and that purely the result of an accident.

Physical Training.

All these exercises are valuable, and good for the health, especially for those who have little walking or bodily activity in their lives, but who spend most of their time sitting in one position.

For these these exercises are specially good; but like all others, they should be taken in moderation, quietly, and without jerks; in a room where there is a fresh current of air, and with no tight or cramping clothing to hinder the movements.

They are as suitable for women as for men.

Fig. 1.

Fig. 2.

Fig. 3.

Fig. 4.

Leg Exercises.

Exercise I.—Lie flat on the ground on the back, with the hands on hips, feet together, and toes pointed.

Raise legs slowly until they are perpendicular, and then lower them slowly until they are on the ground once more. (Fig. 1.)

Repeat this three times.

II.—"Position." Hands on hips as in the last exercise. Keep legs stiff and raise slowly on the toes, and then slowly back again. Repeat twenty-five to thirty times.

Very this by keeping legs stiff and jumping on the toes with a skipping movement.

III.—Standing in the same position, bend slowly down from the knees, until sitting on the heels, and then slowly up again, three or four times. This is called the double knee bend. (Fig. 2.)

IV.—Standing in the same position, feet together, raise left knee as high as the waist, forcing the knee down, and then slowly bring it to the ground again. (Fig. 3.)

Same action with the right foot. Repeat this steadily as in marching.

V.—Keep the hands in the same position and the legs stiff, march round the room on toes. (Fig. 4.)

FRANKLIN'S ADVICE TO HIS SON.

Temperance.—Eat not to dullness; drink not to elevation.

Silence.—Speak not but what may benefit others or yourself; avoid trifling conversation.

Order.—Let all your things have their places; let each part of your business have its time.

Resolution.—Resolve to perform what you ought to perform without fail what you resolve.

Frugality.—Make no expense but to do good to others or yourself—i.e., waste nothing.

Industry.—Lose no time; be always employed in something useful; cut off all unnecessary action.

Wrecked in Sights Harbor

One of the worst storms in Ontario for many years occurred on the 21st of October, 1892. Considerable damage was done. The schooner Wrecked was given up, and the crew were saved. The Wrecked was a 100-ton vessel, and was last seen in sight of the bay, the captain having given up the hope of finding safety. The heavy seas were too much for her, and losing her rudder the schooner soon became helpless and

Was Driven Ashore within a few yards of the entrance to the harbor. The crew and officers, including Capt. Ward and his son, were rescued by the life-boat from Ward's Island. The wreck was plainly visible from the Young's wharf, her tall masts seeming to tell the pathetic story of the torn condition of the vessel.

Moralizing sounds weak in the face of such powerful illustrations. Yet we can one resist the recurrence of the thought that St. Paul's expression to when he referred to those who had "made shipwreck of faith."

Oh, these spiritual wrecks! Oh, the sorrowful stories connected with the lives of many backsliders! They are to be found in almost every home—though, alas! many of them are not to be found there, in worse places, not realizing their dreadful condition. Theirs is a lifeless and useless life, but too plainly portrays the contrast between their happy, useful experience in this world and God and man. Some have run well for a short time, others longer, and, oh, thought some were well in sight of the harbor. But while there is hope, and in the unfathomable darkness of Mariner put you right on the Harbor of Eternal Peace.

Intensely

By Brigadier General

There are a lot of religious people as everybody knows; but who have ever lived before at the stand-point of quantum? But in religion, like man, does not make up for the very often adds to its own sins. We take a Salvation Army, are a lot of soldiers who seem to be in the platform and wise help in the various meetings. When the prayer-meeting of the soldiers remains to the souls, or, at all events, for their fellow-creatures, a few old people whom they walk home, and sometimes two young people leave because

They have no time. Before they came to the Lord, they never expected it; they expected souls to be saved, someone else, while they were walking, or a soft drink. Anyway, they were not agonized and persuade the souls wanted to be saved if they were not aman.

Wrecked in Sight of the Harbor.

One of the worst storms that has swept Lake Ontario for many years occurred two weeks ago. Considerable damage was done, and the illustration given herewith shows the wreck of a large schooner, with over 700 tons of coal in her hold. Being within sight of the bay, the captain hoped to reach it, and thus find safety. The heavy seas, however, were too much for her, and losing her rudder the schooner soon became helpless and within a few yards of the gap—the entrance to the harbor. With difficulty and great courage on the part of Capt. Ward and others, the crew of seven persons were rescued by the life-boat from Ward's Island. The wreck is plainly visible from the Yonge St. wharf, her tall masts seeming to tell the pathetic story of the torn condition of the wreck—the more pathetic because within a few minutes of home and safety.

Was Driven Ashore

Moralizing sounds weak in the face of such forceful illustrations, yet can one resist the recurrence of the thought that St. Paul gave expression to when he referred to those who had "made shipwreck of faith."

On these spiritual wrecks!

Oh, the sorrowful story connected with the lives of so many backsliders! They are to be found in almost every barracks—though, alas! many of them are not to be found there, but in worse places, not realizing their dreadful condition. Their worse than helpless and useless position but too plainly portrays the awful contrast between their former happy, useful experience in serving God and man. Some of them had run well for a short time, others longer, and, oh, terribly thought some were wrecked in sight of the harbor. Backsliders, while there is hope, and before you sink into the unfathomable darkness of despair, let the Master Mariner put you right on the true course for the Harbor of Eternal Peace.

Intensely Religious.

By Brigadier Graham, Australia.

There are a lot of religious people in the world, as everybody knows; probably many more than have ever lived before at one period, so that from the standpoint of quantity one feels encouraged. But in religion, like many other things, quantity does not make up for the lack of quality; nay, it very often adds to its own defeat and undoing. Let us take a Salvation Army corps, for instance. Here are a lot of soldiers who march, and sing, and assemble on the platform and in the hall, and otherwise help in the various features of the meeting. When the prayer-meeting comes on, the majority of the soldiers remain to help capture the convicted souls, or, at all events, those who feel any concern for their fellow-creatures remain, except, perhaps, a few old people whom it will take a long time to walk home, and sometimes there may be one or two young people leave the prayer-meetings just because

They Have No Interest In It

Before they came to the first meeting they didn't pray that the Lord would save souls, or, if they did, they never expected it; or if they prayed and expected souls to be saved, they left the helping to someone else, while they took themselves off for a walk, or a soft drink, or some other indulgence. Anyway, they were not going to stop and pray and agonize and persuade anyone to be converted. If souls wanted to be saved, they knew the way, and if they were not anxious, why force the people?

in such a way they would argue.

Perhaps I may not be correct in limiting this kind to one or two. They may be more numerous than that, but it's the "sort," the "stamp," the "brand," I refer to. Now everyone who has had anything to do with soul-saving knows that it is a very earnest business; it taxes one's whole being. It is "travailing in birth," and it is rarely accomplished without much earnest prayer to God, much pleading with the sinner, and much labor of soul and mind, and it is for this reason, probably, that so many Christians take no part in soul-saving efforts.

service must be prompted by love to God, otherwise it is not acceptable to God, nor will it receive His blessing. I rejoice that "Love is the fulfilling of the law," and that every man, woman, or child, no matter of what capacity of mind or soul, can be filled with love, and when that is so, that person is "Spirit-filled," or "God-filled," or "sanctified wholly," and divinely fitted for successful and acceptable service in the Kingdom of God, according to his or her ability and opportunity.

It is the intensity of love, and not the quantity of work accomplished, that stamps our service as divine, therefore let us "By love serve one another," and also "Love God with all our heart, and all our mind, and all our strength, for love never faileth."

One Way of Getting a Blessing.

Sunday found me removed from usual Sabbath labors, comfortably homed at lovely St. Peter's Bay. The morning was ideal. I had intended reading for an hour but nature spoke too strongly, and I went out to commune with her and her God. A gentle breeze rippled over the Bay; here, just pebbling the water daintily; there, where stronger, making tiny wavelets. A painter might represent this embrace of elements, wind and water kissing each other; but what human power could ever duplicate the actual elements or the scene? God only!

It was a revelation of His tender power!

Over the Bay came

The Sound of an Organ.

What were they playing? Ah, hallowed song! "Jesus, Lover of My Son!" How the words sang to my soul as I stood and listened!

A flock of young plover circled swiftly along the bank; a dog barked playfully across the water; a king-fisher splashed in for his morning meal. From the bridge I gazed down at the minnows swimming in great shoals against the outgoing tide. Two bare-headed children toddled along the road, hand in hand, pictures of innocence. On either slope were green trees and laughing fields, with restful homes set therein as jewels adorning the pastoral bosom. A sail was on the bay. The grasshoppers chirped; the bees hummed busily by; the echoes of a distant cow-bell came faintly to the ear, while birds sang joyously from many a wing or cover.

Does one need to go to church or Army to meet and commune with God? No, no, no! He is all around us, and all the time around us! Where is the atheist, where is the agnostic, where is the infidel, where is the sinner who can truly and not be converted? Where is the believer who, as his eye gathers in the glorious panorama of sun and wave, and tree, and field, and life, does not cry out in rapture and thanksgiving, as his heart throbs wildly with the joy of it all—"This God is the God I adore and serve!"

Listen to Nature's Sermon

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt, so kind and hospitable, did not know it, but I got the blessing of the summer here to-day.—W. A. Hawley.

Thought They Were Safe.

Terrible destruction held homes in a Hudson River town recently. The people for years had been warned that they were living on quicksands. Able at any time to give way as the clay pits were dug nearer them. One night a family was told that the nearby bank had already broken.

"Oh," said one, "an hour more cannot make much difference; no need to be alarmed."

Within ten minutes the house and all that was in it were swept to destruction.

Another said, "I have lived here ten years, guess I am a go for another ten," but the boy, he too, was engulfed.

We are safe only on the Rock—Jesus Christ. Dig deep and lay the foundation well. Then when the stream rises and beats vehemently against you as it is sure to do, it cannot shake you; for the that trust in the Lord shall be as Mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth for ever.

Conservable men are workers together with Jesus. Their labor is not in vain in the Lord.

When the soul is entangled, even though desire, aspiration, and ambition are strong, the soul is being set free, and will be while the soul is being set free, less.

WAR CRY

PRINTED for Thomas B. Coombs, Commissioner of the Salvation Army in Canada, and, Bermuda, and Alaska, by the Salvation Army Printing House, 21 Albert Street, Toronto.

All manuscript to be written in ink or by typewriter, and on ONE side of the paper only. Write name and address plainly.

For the convenience of the readers, contents of THE WAR CRY, contributions for publication in its pages, inquiries about it, or matters referring to subscriptions, despatch and change of address, should be addressed to THE EDITOR, S. A. Temple, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Post Office and Express Orders should be made payable to Thomas B. Coombs.

EDITORIALS

The General. It will doubtless have proven a wonder to thousands that our great veteran leader should, at seventy seven years of age, be able to undertake such a campaign as revealed by the reports of his motor tour in the last two and present issues of the War Cry. There is no let up to his earnest desire on behalf of the souls and bodies of men, for verily he is dealing with mighty issues that pertain to both.

Harvest Festival. This institution has become time-honored, even from a Salvation Army standpoint. It dates back a long time, however, for almost everyone knows their Bible sufficiently to remember that it was one of the annual feasts of the Levitical law. A tenth of the firstfruits were brought into the house of the Lord, and were devoted to His work. The fact that this is the spirit and purpose of the Harvest Festival effort should be sufficient to warrant the heartiest co-operation of soldiers with their officers, and a generous response on the part of giving a tangible expression of their gratitude to Him who has so bountifully bestowed the various fruits of harvest.

The British Toronto was honored by Medical Association, being the place of meeting for this session of the Association. Eminent physicians and surgeons from Europe, Asia, and America were present, and the advantage to the profession in Canada, by the light and counsel resulting from the gathering will probably be difficult to estimate, and thus, too, will the sick and afflicted be benefited.

Many important papers were read, but there was one that particularly struck us as being worthy of referring to—that of Sir Victor Horsley. He took strong ground again: the use of alcohol in surgical practice, and declared its medicinal qualities absolutely nil, and in most cases positively harmful. He supported his statements with such tangible evidence as shown in the fact that the cost of alcohol in the London hospitals had decreased in forty years from $40,000 to $15,000, while the annual milk bill had increased from $15,000 to $40,000. Surely this testimony should prove a strong enough temperance sermon to bring about results—and that immediately—throughout Canada as would gladden sorrowing wives and parents in particular, and Christians in general, who realize somewhat of the devastating work of the great destroyer.

Immigration. The words spoken by Premier Whitney at one of the General's meetings in England are forcible and timely, and are backed up by facts that have been amply demonstrated. Almost at the same moment Commissioner Coombs and the General's representative—Colonel Lamb—were dealing with the herculean feat of bringing out and placing 25,000 persons next year, in accordance with the principles already adopted. Brigadier Howell and his agents are in touch with the farmers and their needs all over the country, and so perfect is the machinery that before a shipment of 1907 is arranged for provision will have been made for their reception and distribution.

Lieut.-Colonel Sharp's Welcome to West Ontario.

(By Wire.)

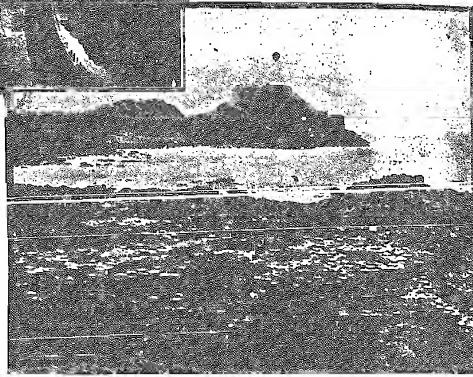

Colonel and Mrs. Sharp received enthusiastic welcome to Western Ontario on Sunday from soldiers and friends. Holliness meeting, seven seekers. Good open-air and inside meeting in the afternoon. Citadel well filled at night by an appreciative audience. Three souls at the penitent form. Crowds and finances excellent.—Staff-Capt. Turpin.

The Beach,
Portrush,

and the

Giant's
Causeway.

Hon. J. P. Whitney, Premier of Ontario, speaks at the General's Meeting in Bath.

HIS TWO REASONS FOR SUPPORTING US.

The Premier of Ontario, the Hon. J. P. Whitney, traveled to Bath from London, in company with Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, in order to be present at the General's meeting in that city on Saturday last, and delivered a stirring, patriotic, and weighty address.

After explaining that his object of obtaining some rest and relaxation in the Old Country had been upset by a letter from Commissioner Coombs, inviting him to take part in the meeting; and after passing a high encomium upon the ability of our Canadian Commissioner and Brigadier Tom Howell, the Canadian statesman gave two reasons why he supported the Army, both in his individual and representative position.

"First," he said, "I believe in the good influence of the Salvation Army. The actions and works of the Army speak for themselves. I believe it to be the bounden duty of all occupying a position similar to mine to draw the attention of the community to every influence that works for its well-being, and it is my duty that brings me here to say what I have said, and to add that I fully believe that this good influence will continue. (Loud applause.)

"The other reason why I support the Salvation Army is because of its emigration work. Over a year ago the Salvation Army brought a thousand selected emigrants on board the Vancouver. Instead of dumping them down in the docks, and leaving them in a worse plight than they would have been if left to themselves, Salvation Army officers, who had previously found for them places in Canada, mostly on the land, saw them straight into their destinations, and I am here to say that the Salvation Army has had a smaller percentage of failures than any other organization engaged in this work. This being the truth, it is right that the truth should be told." (Loud applause.)

The honorable gentleman next proceeded to magnify the importance of this work as it affected Canada, which he described as a great auxiliary nation of the British Empire, and concluded by saying: "The methods of the Army have been criticized, General. That's your affair, sir. I have nothing to do with them. It was the results that commended themselves to me, and by the results I am satisfied." (Loud and prolonged applause)—English War Cry.

The new Song Book will be a boon to Canada, particularly to those corps having bands, as the numbers are the same as in the hand book. The cheapest variety of this book will be sold at twenty-five cents.

Glimpses of Beautiful Ireland

NEWSLETS.

The Commissioner is anxious that fife and drum bands should be adopted in the junior work as far as possible.

Riverdale, we believe, is the first corps to undertake this, and have placed an order with the Trade Department for supplies.

The Trade Department is getting a supply of fife and other requisites from the International Headquarters. Information given on request.

We had the pleasure of meeting an old and well-remembered Canadian veteran in Lieut.-Colonel Margette. The Temple was favored with a lecture by the Lieut.-Colonel on "Is the Child Worth Saving?" Many were glad to see the Colonel. We also cause a glimpse a few days ago of the glow that beams on Major Edwy White's face.

With such reinforcements as Capt. Hanagan in the Financial Department, we presume Brigadier Horn will now pinion himself that the enemies of that Department may consider they have met their Waterloo.

Rumor has it that a new Staff Band of an order that is to astonish the natives is about to develop. It will doubtless consume much surplus energy, which may not be the least worthy feature. Success to the new organization—may it prove a terror to the devil.

The Temple Band is delighted with the silver-plating work done through the Trade Department. Any band contemplating having their instruments plated should communicate with the Trade Department, as the best work, at a very moderate price, can be depended upon.

Major Morris and the Male Quartette, from Headquarters, aroused considerable interest during their visit to Owen Sound, and good crowds came to the barracks to hear them. Everyone worked well in the meetings, and much enthusiasm and zeal were manifested, resulting in the capture of four souls on Sunday night. A good open-air was held in the park in the afternoon. On Monday a musical festival was given in the barracks, and the crowd was a record one.

The Commissioner generously granted a half-holiday to the Headquarters Staff, and invited them to tea at Centre Island, in honor of Colonels Lamb and Simpson. Lieut.-Colonel Pugmire and the ladies who served under his direction, served it up in a style worthy to do honor to princes—and weren't they?

Don't miss next week's Cry. It will be the West Coast number, and will be a

The General

Great Enthusiasm

The third week of this camp is over.

I have beheld some wonderful feeling in civilized and semi-barbarous world; but I cannot recall a human face was so lit up with the man with the grey, red-brown, snow-white head, stood upon the heads of the men and women centres! There has been no board.

Men, Women, and

It was computed that on scaled the hills that surrounded and Rochdale three hundred and children must have turned

A large degree of novelty campaign; it was a daring maintained to a less extent this campaign you are not The cars, as an exhibition their attraction; while the peed for with ravenous like welcomed with an intense such joyous shouts, mingled from religions and one is compelled to say, "Will it last? What will it issues be?"

The Army and

One is forced to think forwards, and I do not envy the of the Staff their task when out what their answer to the will be. For let them be the Salvation Army and they mixed together. The people going with interest their doing, but they are looking must go on, every Jack man hopes, and crown the name of praise, and blessing, and judgment.

Try and imagine what our campaign signifies. If London pavements from the Mansions New Yorkers the sidewalk puddles the thoroughfares of Aigburth, crowded with people clothes, clogs, aprons, are into one long, dateating of "Bless him!" at every have an idea of the immense

Artisan's B

At Burnley there was a service with a Niagara around the believed, thirty thousand men stood in a dense pack men were everywhere. In dictation. The General and Hanley in a success between 10 and 11 a.m. for a dog to be out.

But from the factories thousands of potters, a tracers in their clean white the streets shouting the pant of the white car. Now keep them in. Work he my eyes, I listened as if I When I opened them I outstretched bare arms sight.

These outbursts of characteristic of the towns; fest by the wayside and strike some as very un-Demonstrative. But all

The General's Third Motor Campaign

Great Enthusiasm at Rochdale, Burnley, Crews, and Other Places.

By Our Special Correspondent.

The third week of this campaign—the most thrilling and electrifying of any in this or any other land—is over.

I have beheld some wonderful visions of human feeling in civilized and semi-civilized parts of the world; but I cannot recall an occasion when the human face was so lit up with the light of affection as in Lancashire and Cheshire this week, or when the human eye dazzled with such lustre as when the man with the grey, red-braided waterman, and snow-white beard, stood up in his white car and beamed his blessing upon the faces of tens of thousands of the men and women toilers of these great centres! There has been nothing like it!

As to numbers, previous records must go to the board.

Men, Women, and Children.

It was computed that on the day the General scaled the hills that surrounded Clitheroe, Barnley, and Rochdale three hundred thousand men, women, and children must have turned out to see him.

A large degree of novelty entered into the first campaign; it was a daring innovation. That was maintained to a less extent in the second. But in this campaign you are not conscious of curiosity. The cars, as an exhibition, have practically lost their attraction; while the one man in his car is peered for with ravenous looks, and, when seen, is welcomed with an intensity of feeling, and with such joyous shouts, mingled with religious benediction from religious and irreligious alike, that one is compelled to say, "This is a new movement—a veritable rising of the people"—and to ask, "Will it last? What will it lead to? What will the issues be?"

The Army and the People.

One is forced to think forwards, as well as backwards, and I do not envy the General and the Chief of the Staff their task when they sit down to think out what their answer to this outburst of affection will be. For let there be no mistake about it—the Salvation Army and the people are inextricably mixed together. The people are not only disengaging with interest their debt for past exploits in the cause, but they are looking to us for more. We must go on, every jaded man of us, to justify their hopes, and crown the name of our Lord with honor, praise, and blessing, or there will be a terrible judgment.

Try and imagine what one day alone in this campaign signifies. If Londoners can imagine the pavements from the Mansion House to Hyde Park, New Yorkers the sidewalks of Broadway, and Liverpudians the thoroughfares from Lord Street to Aigburth, crowded with people in their work-a-day clothes, clogs, aprons, and shawls, breaking out into one long, deafening cheer, with ejaculations of "Bless him!" at every few yards, they will then have an idea of the immensity of the thing.

Artisan's Benediction.

At Burnley it was a scream, at Rochdale a roar, with a Niagara around the Town Hall, where it is believed, thirty thousand men, women, and children stood in dense pack. At Crewe, men, men, men were everywhere. It was an artisan's benediction. The General entered Burslem, Tunstall, and Hanley in a succession of blinding showers between 10 and 11 a.m. It was a morning not fit for a dog to be out.

But from the factories out rushed thousands and thousands of potters, and women-polishers, and tracers in their clean white overalls, who stood in the streets shouting their blessings upon the occupant of the white car. No employer or gauger could keep them in. Work had to stand still. Closing my eyes, I listened as if to the noise of many waters. When I opened them I saw nothing but faces and outstretched bare arms—a wonderfully enchanting sight.

These outbursts of affection were not only characteristic of the towns; they were even more manifest by the wayside and in small places. This will strike some as very unlikely. The country is not demonstrative. But all on board the cars will

Thrown into the Car.

Groups of ten to a hundred people, sheltered under leafy canopies from the sun, but often from the rain, would make the countryside and woods re-echo with their shouts and blessings on the head of the man they love. Cards of greeting, small and large bouquets, bunches of fruit, envelopes with shillings, sixpences, and sovereigns were thrown into—but, alas! sometimes only at—the white car. It could not stop, you see, the law of the time-table had to be kept.

An old lady of ninety insisted on being led on two crutches to the roadside, that she might see "the dear General," adding, "I will then die in peace."

At another point a bed-ridden creature had to be brought in her very bed to the lane-end to wave her soul-loving cheer to the good man. Mother's would be with him when his feet touched the cold waters of the Jordan, the few soldiers from Tewkesbury were deeply moved.

An Outdoor Campaign.

In fact, in a very important sense, this has been a huge open-air campaign. The greater part of the time is spent on the high road; and, frankly, the General's meetings by the wayside have been refreshing wells of pure salvation feeling. Indoors the work of the General is necessarily and properly educational. Outdoors it is, as it has been since the General began at fifteen to preach Christ and His crucified, red-hot religion. He is here heard at his very best.

At Todmorden the General spoke to that he could be heard easily by eight thousand people; at Nantwich ten thousand; at Whitechurch—where, by the way, the military band came out and did the General honor—he had the people perfectly spellbound by one of the straightest and most practical expositions of simple Christianity that I have ever listened to. It was full of this sort of talk:—

"Don't play the fool with your money. Save it, make the best use of it to promote your true happiness, the interests of your poorer neighbors, and the Kingdom of God. Look at your health. Next to salvation, it is the greatest blessing on earth.

The Motor-Bus, Seventy-Three Years Ago.—Hancock's Steam-Coach, the "Era," Arriving at Greenwich.

Hancock's steam-coach, which plied between London and Greenwich, resembled two stage-coaches on end, with a third compartment like a mail or baggage van. It was mentioned in the Parliamentary Report of 1832 as a machine in daily use on common roads. The Report continues, "Mr. Hancock reckons that with his carriage he could keep up a speed of ten miles per hour, without injury to the machine."

cried, "Bless my child, General!" and he would raise his restful hand in response. One man wept in a little crowd outside Evesham because the white ear bolted before he could get near to it with his boy. All solitary and alone, it is safe to say hundreds of men and women along the route stood and smiled, waved their hands, or shouted God-speeds. Many devices were invented to bring the car to a standstill. Once or twice they succeeded, not altogether to the pleasure of the time-table-keeping pilot.

A Strange Device.

Between Cheltenham and Bath, two old ladies, wearing Army shields, held a long streamer right thwart the roadway, on which were painted, in flaming letters, "Welcome, General! Thank you for your words. We'll be glad to see you again!" Here was faith, indeed, such as we had not seen in all England! It staggered Colonel Eddie. We stopped. To the right, a horse and trap were decorated with amazing letters, glorifying the General, and commanding heaven's blessing upon "the friend of the poor."

The company, to the number of fifty, embraced half a dozen patriarchal-looking farmers, one of whom (a Mr. Chris) was introduced as co-founder with George Williams of the Y.M.C.A., and who has personally conducted a prayer meeting in his kitchen for fifty years! This touched the General's

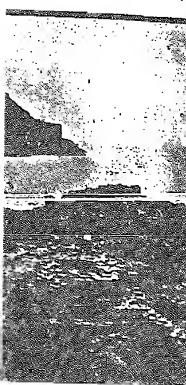

Be careful, then, what you put into your body. It is the temple of God. Your soul is in it. Serve the Lord with clean hands. Praise Him with clean lips. Don't pollute them with drink and tobacco. Save your souls—whatever else you do, do this. And serve God. Don't be deluded by that damnable heresy, that it is left to your option whether you will or not. It is right to serve God. You ought to do so. Be a Salvation Army in your own heart and life. Go to work and save the people. As we came over these lovely hills, I could not but admire these ears. They were like almighty conquerors, insignificant as they looked. They were not frightened at the steep inclines. They rushed up, grinding their way to the top, and once over, they seemed to pant to surmount another. And what is the secret of it all? They have a fire inside. Have you a fire in your church, your home, and your heart?"

Penitent Form Wanted.

Inspired by the look of conviction that invariably rested upon the faces of the crowd, the General would fire away, until one expected to see the foot-board of the white car converted into a penitent form.

At one of these wayside talks I observed Colonel Edward Wright's features contract, and his eyes turn moist. He is a strong man, and can keep his feelings well in hand; but the effect of that wayside

pses of utiful Ireland

SLETS.

is anxious that fits and drug ated in the junior work as far is, is the first corps to undertak an order with the Trade es.

ent is getting a supply of sites from the international ation given on request.

of meeting an old and wellveteran in Lieut-Colonel le was favored with a lec-
on "Is the Child Worth glad to see the Colonel. We a few days ago of the glow
ddy White's face.

ments as Capt. Hanagan Jr.
ent, we presume Brigadier himself that the enemies of consider they have met their new Staff Band of an order atives is about to develop,

ume much surplus energy,
ast worthy feature. Success
—may it prove a terror to delighted with the silverugh the Trade Department

having their instruments
cate with the Trade De-work, at a very moderate
upon.

the Male Quartette, from considerable interest dur-
Sound, and good crowds to hear them. Every-meetings, and much enthu-
unfeigned, resulting in the a Sunday night. A good
the park in the afternoon,
festival was given in the
was a record one.

generously granted a half-ers Staff, and invited them
in honor of Colonels Lamb
Colonel Pugmire and the his direction, served it up o honor to "princes—and

Cry. It will be the Har-

THE WAR CRY.

reins, and when the General prayed, it was in the Holy Ghost and with another from on high.

We had two such exceptionally charming walks. One was at the pretty little spot Lichfield, the birthplace of Samuel Johnson. The white car stopped near to the Cathedral, a few yards from the house in which the great writer was born, and under the very shadow of the stately structure of the memory. The Mayor—Mr. Harrison did not fail to make a comparison between the dead and the living—the one who had inscribed his name on the pillar of literary fame, the other on the hearts of the oppressed and thehurst. The General gave a stirring address on the sacredness of doing our duty to God and our neighbours, and though the majority of his listeners used their umbrellas—for there was a noisy rain—I could see that the General's words hit home. A drunken fellow pushed his way to the white car to shake hands with our leader, and got a roost for his pains. "Give up the drink, General! All right sir, I will." When we got out of the crowd, the General said, "If we had but a perfect form that Jesus would have been our first out."

Note to Martyrdom.

This other walk was a historic background carried in the brain of the hill, on which stands the main tower of Knaresborough, made immortal by Sir Walter Scott and the minstrelsy of Henry Lathom. The Councillor, who introduced the General to the local people to the opposite side of the street, and remarked that it was just there that the Bishop stopped on his way to execution and built his cloisters and cell to their fame. The General made a short but suggestive speech of the execution "of all that is marvellous" he said, "but to receive a similar assurance from my General, of the 'righting' of justice in me." He proceeded to explain the change as arising from what he called "the Army's presence" and went on: "We had travelled a good distance before Lathom shed a blood for the order of Divine retribution, but his name is immortal, as a symbol, the lever of the Divine law into living practice is a question that may well make us pause."

For the Man in the Street.

But this campaign has not only supplied a trumpet for the man in the street with which to voice his admiration for and faith in the General of the Salvation Army. It has done more. If that were all, it would still be worth recording as a striking movement of the times. The campaign has brought into it, as I pointed out last week, the religious and civil leaders of the country in a way that is truly surprising. They have spoken emphatically, and almost without qualification, in support of our work, and the way in which the Salvation Army is led and managed.

Army, Church, Chapel.

Civic addresses, with one or two exceptions, have been presented to the General wherever he has gone. Mayors have entertained the Staff. Ministers of the free churches have pressed their way to the General's chamber to testify to their sympathy with him and his work, and what is more remarkable Clergy and Vicars of the Church of England have, with equal magnanimity, and with even a keener insight into the spiritual energy of our work, opened the meetings with prayer, and praised God for the faithfulness of the General in his day and generation.

For instance, Canon Atkinson, at Coventry thanked God that we placed so prominently before the world's attention by Christ, and holiness by the regeneration of the Spirit, and with his wife half-knelt down, feeling he spoke of the General as the veteran who embodied the compassion of Christ for souls in a marvelous degree.

Even moreampionship was Canon Flory, of Leamington, who said: "I don't say less than half of what I said of gratitude to God for the life of the General, but especially a Clergyman of the Church, and a Canon of one of its cathedrals, I maintain that the man of that name must be very dear to God and his nature very similar if he has not recognized the great and noble work accomplished by the Salvation Army." And these men were they are talking about.

Chairmen's Addresses.

Then there are the chairmen. There will have been the opposite of platitude in the General's embrace of M.P.s, Mayors, Magistrates, conformists, and Churchmen—high, broad, and while some are not conspicuous among the fellow-townspeople for doing much in the way of religion. But they know the Army. They are like a set of scribblers who gather their impress of our work from irresponsible outside people. They come in contact with our own people day by day.

In Shakespeare's Memorial Theatre.

On Friday—the worst day of the week—the general filed the big Opera House at 11 a.m. Lexington, in the afternoon, opened the eyes of a well-to-do to the latent emotional power of a plow. The local people say they seldom hear cheering as accompanied the General in the Town Hall. The Mayor here was the most kind. We closed the day at Stratford-on-Avon, at Shakespeare's home. Here a remarkable thing occurred. The Memorial Theatre, that has not yet been leased to any religious organization, was generously placed at the General's disposal.

Next morning favored with a general breeze as General drove ninety miles far through one of the fairest spots on earth. Oh, England, England! How beautiful is thy dress! From the top of the Cotswold Hills we view a long stretch of natural beauty. Not satisfied with the nobleness of a run, the General spoke at no less than three vales. About 2 p.m. we descended upon Bath, rushed toward the Sandwich, along the route which people in hundreds waved their hands to the passing traveler. The cars had to wedge themselves into the heart of an enormous crowd, and when the ceremony of welcome was over, and the M.P. (Sir Sil) had stepped from the white car, Captain Catherine Booth took his place. "This is a grandchild," said the General, embracing her with the intense joy of the crowd.

ARNOLD'S COVE. The Out-Harbor Fighting. (continued)

ed Chance Cove, an outpost of the three souls. This week the Arm, another outpost. They put up a good fight, but not a barrikade and quarters, and others to see their way clear. We had a nice time and all officer once more. On my P. some blessed times. Of late men saved, who are keeping make two good fighting Capt.

AURORA. Misses Kyle and Simpson Lead on.

Eva Simpson of Territories Saturday—and all day much enjoyed, and God gave him plenty of singing and playing the cornet and also singing. It took very well, near to us, and though they put all their strength and Miss Simpson spoke to us a hard fight in the prayer of seeing three souls kneeling them and keep them true to the meeting that should give in, so after praying for we closed our meeting for best, and also that we have with knee-drill at 7 a.m.

BRAMPTON. Bearable One Soul. The average soul at night visit a great blessing.—L.

BRANTFORD. And Getting Steam Up. God! Four form in the morning hall. Tindall gave us some good short talk, partly on his good and well attended. Six souls out for salvation is coming up.—H. C. K.

CHANNEL. On Saturday Seven Souls. rades took Sunday was souls and at the close came to Christ and proved Tuesday night for several we came to the penitent form M. Noel.

CLARK'S BEACH. Sunday Two Souls. closed pardon, making two for night in the open-air we soldiers were all on fire favored with a visit from West, Basingstoke. The people wonder what brought them to the bar gave us a beautiful talk enjoyed very much.—L.

COLLINGWOOD. We Four Souls. and for salvation Gladio.

DARTMOUTH. Oh! The Illigant Told Cry MacIntyre, after news. Our open-air meetings at them of old, home mission worker still bright and preached left Royal soldiers came to a Sunday night matinée good to see th' owl meteath like th' Illigant Staff-Capt. McNamara night. A very nice an a good impression them.

DESERONTO. On Farewell of P. O. Turcopp Province, after being the five years. Capt. Neil Trenton, were present, of the Brigadier, as also Staff-Capt. Perry made

CORPS BULLETINS

ARNOLD'S COVE. The S. A. is in a healthy Out-Harbor Fighting. condition in this part of the village. Last week I visited Chance Cove, an outpost. We had a good time and three souls. This week I visited Musel Harbor Arm, another outpost. These dear comrades have put up a good fight, but now they have a nice little barracks and quarters, and are waiting for our leaders to see their way clear to send them on off. We had a nice time and all seemed happy to see our officer once more. On my return I found that under the leadership of S.M. Peach the comrades had had some blessed times. Of late we have had two young men saved, who are keeping good, and I believe will make two good fighting soldiers.—A. J. Merton, Capt.

AURORA. We had the pleasure Misses Kyle and Simpson of having Miss Kyle, daughter of our Chief Secretary, and Miss Eva Simpson of Territorial Headquarters, with us on Saturday and all day Sunday. Their visit was much enjoyed, and God came and blessed us much. We had plenty of singing and music. Miss Simpson played the cornet and also the guitar, and with their singing it look very well. Sunday night God came near to us, and though tired in body, our special put all their strength and soul into the meeting. Miss Simpson spoke to us about Zacchaeus, and after a hard fight in the prayer meeting we had the joy of seeing three souls kneel at Jesus' feet. God blessed them and kept them true. There were others in the meeting that should have come, but would not give in, so after praying for and pleading with them, we closed our meeting feeling we had done our best, and also that we had a good day, starting with knee-crib at 7 a.m.—N. Nicholson, Capt.

BRAMPTON. Beautiful week-end. Crowds above One Soul. The average finances good, and one soul at night. Lieutenant Palmer's visit a great blessing.—Lieut. K. Yandaw.

BRANTFORD. Another grand week-end for Getting Steam Up. God! We struck for victory. Four souls out to the penitent form in the morning holiness meeting. Bandsman Tindall gave us some good encouragement by a short talk, partly on his own experience. Opened good and well attended. Savalou battle at night. Six souls out for salvation. Harvest Festival steam is coming up.—H. C. K. Capt.

CHANNEL. On Saturday night four dear com- Seven Souls.rades took their stand as soldiers. Sunday was a blessed day to our souls and at the close the two poor wandering souls came to Christ and proved His power to save. On Tuesday night a dear mother, who had been under conviction for several weeks, rose to her feet and came to the penitent form, where she got saved.—M. Noel.

CLARK'S BEACH. Sunday, from 7 a.m. till we Two Souls. closed at night. God's power was felt and one soul found pardon, making two for the week. Wednesday night in the open-air we had a blessed time. The soldiers were all on fire. On Friday night we were favored with a visit from the wild-man from the West, Ensign Bristol. The open-air meeting made the people wonder what would happen next, and brought them to the barracks, where the Ensign gave us a very full talk on Zacchaeus, which we enjoyed very much.—Lucie Hecht's, Capt.

COLLINGWOOD. We are having good meetings Four Souls. and four souls have sought salvation during the past week.—Gladie.

DARTMOUTH. Oh see by the last wake's The Illigant Told MacIntire. Cry that ye hov bin blowin' som' at th' folks up a bit, so ol' be after givin' ye a bit at th' news. Our open-air meetings are going inadade. Th' folks at th' mill sane this miny a day. A home mission worker stopped into th' mill Saturday night and preached like a good wan. Wan by th' folist soldiers came to make things right agin in a Sunday night matin' an' it wud do ye a power av good to see th' ow! wen carry th' flag down th' strate like th' Illigant told MacIntire himself. Staff Capt. McNamara gave us a folist matin' Sunday night. A very nice congregation were present an' a good impression were manifest.—Wan av them."

DESERONTON. On Saturday night Brigadier Farewell of P.O. Turner bid farewell to the local corps, as he is leaving this Province, after being the Provincial Officer for over five years. Capt. Nelson and Lieut. Trium, of Trenton, were present, and spoke of the kindness of the Brigadier, as also did the local officers. Mrs. Staff-Capt. Perry made a few remarks on the Brig-adier's personal interest and kindness to herself and other officers of the Province, and also of the advancement the Army had made in this Province under his kind and zealous leadership. Brigadier Turner urged the soldiers and comrades to overcome everything that would tend to hinder them from being warriors in the fight with sin, and the uplifting of fallen humanity. The Sunday meetings were conducted by Capt. Harry Hurst, assisted by the local officers. Capt. Hurst is known in Montreal as "Bright Sides." He is an officer of great lung capacity, and is never stuck for a word to tell of the bright side of the Christian life, for if there is not one in the dictionary expressive enough, he has no hesitation in coining one for the occasion.—Local Paper.

ESSEX. On Sunday, August 26th, Farewell of Officers. Capt. and Mrs. Sharpe held their farewell meetings. Many of the soldiers and friends testified to the help and blessing received through the labors of the Captain and his wife since their arrival here, nearly ten months ago. During the evening service a pastor of one of the leading churches addressed the large gathering in the barracks. The prayer meeting closed with three souls at the penitent form. On Tuesday morning a goodly number of the soldiers formed a march and accompanied the officers from the barracks to the station, where a stirring open-air meeting was held. We are expecting Capt. and Mrs. Fenwick, of Windsor, on Friday evening. One interested.

FENELON FALLS. On Sunday Staff-Capt. and Capt. Ellery were with us all day. We were glad to see our comrades back again. They ng two of our buildings are going under repairs. We are having victory all around. The spiders are pulling up and are expecting great things from the hands of the Lord.—Benjamin.

GUELPH. Glorious weekend at Guelph: a Band Sunday. time of great blessing and power. It was Band Sunday, each bandsman doing their duty to make it a success. Large crowds attended open-air. The response to all offerings taken was very liberal indeed. One young man surrendered.—Pattoned.

HALIFAX. Sunday was a good day to our Saved in 'Frisco. souls. Hundreds attended the open-air meetings, and the crowds inside were good. In the afternoon meeting a gentleman rose up and told of his conversion six years ago, whilst walking down a street in San Francisco, through the singing of two Army lassies. Adjutant and Mrs. Wiggins have farewell, after twenty-two months' stay.—J. M. P.

HAMILTON III. We have just had another visit On the Move. from Sergt. Bradley, of the Temple. Good crowds at our open-air and good collections. Last Sunday will live long in our memories. At night God's Spirit chose very near, and we felt His working in our midst. One dear backsider came back seeking God's forgiveness. The comrades felt so overjoyed that they had a haldejub wind-up. One of the old-fashioned kind. We all give Sergt. Bradley a hearty invitation to return again, and that at an early date.—W. J. H.

GOING TO THE H. F.

Wheat—"Say, Red Face, where are you going?"
Pumpkin—"You're not the only thing. I'm going to the Harvest Festival at the Barracks. A whole lot are following—Cabbages, Onions, Beets, and others. You won't look so big when we get together. See!"

are old warriors of this corps. God bless them. On Monday night Major Rawling and his assistant, Ensign Peacock, landed here accompanied by Adj. McCann and Capt. Dauberhile, from Lindsay. God came very near to us and blessed our souls. The Major got a hearty welcome from the comrades. We got a grand talk on our Indian work in this country, which opened the eyes of many to this wonderful branch of the Army's work. Lieuts. Bynion and Rutherford are stationed here, and are going in for some hard work. They have launched their $55 H. F. ship.—Patsy.

FERNIE. Three precious souls for the week. Three Souls. end. We have been having a number of special meetings during the past few weeks, which have proved quite successful. The band had charge of one Sunday's meeting, and the Juniors had the afternoon meeting of last Sunday. The sisters are also doing one meeting a week. On Sunday night we went into the open-air twenty-one strong, breaking all previous records.—S. A. Silvers.

FEVERSHAM. We had with us for the week, G. S. M. Special, and Ensign Poole. On Saturday night he gave us a lantern service entitled "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room." The service was enjoyed very much. Sunday was a day of blessing. God came very near, and although it was wet, yet we had a nice crowd. The Ensign spoke on the narrow way, and delivered it with such force that conviction was brought upon the people. God is helping us wonderfully on Diance, INVERNESS. We have just had a visit Capt. Cavender Stops from Capt. Cavender, the Over. G. B. M. Agent for the Eastern Province. The Captain was with us from Friday night until Sunday night. The meetings all through were times of blessing. The lantern service was enjoyed by all, and each one went away feeling more than ever interested in this good work. Boxes have been distributed, and by the appearance of them now, there is good prospects for more of them. The people say: "Come again, Captain." Things in Inverness are on the upgrade. Our Band of Love and junior meetings are doing fine.—L. Moore, Capt.

KINMOUNT. One backsider has returned home. One Soul. to God, and others are under deep conviction. The hot weather has kept the crowds away, but the Spirit of God is working amongst the sinners.—Lieut. Crowther's wife for LINDSAY. Since the last report we had a good visit of D. O. to say the Lord is blessing, meeting on helping us in our open-air. See and talk We were pleased to have a visit from our old words of Major Rawling, accompanied by the Capt. Peacock; had a fairly good time. I get to Shakan "Come again, Major!"—J. L. D. and visit, Brigadier.

MEDICINE HAT. Capt. Day Under Two Flags. was with us days, and "Under Two Flags," to an

THE WAR CRY.

We have welcomed Lieut. Smith and believe she will be a help and blessing. The corps has been much strengthened by the arrival of Baptismal White's wife, who is a thorough Salvationist. Bro. and Sister Philibert, with their little girl Emily, have also come among us—Marybelle.

MONTREAL L. We can report a glorious week. Four Scouls and we had with us Colonel Lant, from England. The Colonels talk was much enjoyed by all. We are glad to report four souls for the day. Our open-air are well attended.—P. S. M.

ORANGEVILLE Sergt. Brown and Mr. One Wanted to be baptised on the weekend. Prayed for it. Four Scouls and their game full of fun and study for God and souls. We did a great amount of work in and out of church, raised the band, singing for an interest in our progress. Our dear Captain, Captain Porter, who has been sick, goes to work for the past few weeks, is expected back this evening Sunday—Victor A. L.

PARLIAMENT ST. A good fight was waged 2 Scouls this weekend. Soldiers turned out to go to open-air meetings and spoke with much power and energy. A large crowd was present for the Soldier's meetings, and more people came in afterwards. The Spirit of God was felt to be among us, and though there seemed to be much contention, His blessed influence, yet at the close of the meeting two young men came up to sing for us. After a short struggle, it was claimed the victory, and we ended up with a glorious meeting.—S. A. C.

REGINA There have been some Capt. Davey in Ksaki. Many converts and a last report, we had 2400 for salvation last Sunday evening. Our Lieutenant has had the use of Easing Hall, who has been by far the most zealous in the Service Corps. Her soul who has been a delight to us and a reminder of old times. She was delighted at the progress the corps has made. The Capt. Davey, the GFM, Capt. Law, Capt. McCallum, and Capt. McElroy, all of whom are now in Canada, will be called in. The Servt. Officer was invited to a packed and interested crowd. It goes we have 2500 at the collection of the boxes—a total of $2000.00 all told—and I understand the local agent is sending us. We are on for beating Winnipeg now, and are in to win. Forty dollars is the target set for next quarter.—B. Corp. Con.

ST. JOHN I. N.B. Design and Mrs. Cornish, assisted by Capt. Falle, are doing good work at the corps. The attendance at the inside meetings is constant. Increasing, and souls are getting saved. Sergt. Major Lane has had another relapse, but is fast recovering. Sergt. W. Cram, an old trial warrior, has been laid aside for some time, and has now gone on a visit to his home in Newfoundlnd. Sergt. and Mrs. Cram have done a good work in the corps. Their souls and influence have been an help and to many a comrade—Burning Bush.

ST. JOHN I. N.B. For the summer 5 Scouls month we have had the pleasure of meeting many old veterans from Canada and the United States, who have all given many blessings. Among those visiting the Isd. I was Captains Law and Brax, who are working in the American field. For the past two months although on rest they have proved themselves efficient and able warriors, and we regret having to say goodbye to them. On Sunday they were announced to farewells and many came to bear them for the last time. At day the power of God was felt working in our meetings. In the afternoon Adj't. Hodder, of Orillia, who was visiting his old friends, was present and gave an address. At night we had an old-fashioned salvation meeting. Capt. Law urged all present to prepare to meet God, and the result was five souls for salvation.—Sticks.

ST. JOHN V. Captains Emery and Lieut. Captains Coombs Rogers are keeping the pot boiling here. A number of souls are being saved, and crowds are all that could be desired. On Wednesday we had a musical meeting, which was a grand success. Besides the local talent, Captain Daisy Coombs sang a solo, and Captain Nellie Coombs spoke to the people on straight salvation lines.—H. W.

ST. THOMAS. Mrs. Adj't. Bross, of and Played in Hotel. Stamford, leading weekend meetings. Her thoughts much liked. A gloom pervaded the place in a measure owing to the fatal loss of Mr. Wiley, who was injured and succumbed to his injuries in the coldest week. Mr. Wiley was a regular in the band, and took a great interest here. The family have requested play at the graveside. "Any port in old adage, and so when a stormy day night we took refuge in the place where the band played the best. The meeting inside, led by Ensign Crook, from the deep devotional power.

Royal Palace, Dresden. Lieut.-Colonel Friedrich writes we have a prosperous Corps in Dresden. Sends 2000 Crys Weekly.

SIMCOE. Since last report we have The Mayor Presided. Had several souls coming to the Lord. A festival given by the brass band and presided over by Mayor Gordon, was a real success. Our junior and senior outing proved an enjoyable time. The band was to the front, and gave the large crowd creditable music, which was much appreciated. Rev. Mr. Brown gave a short interesting address. Boaring and talking filled up the rest of our time. Adj't. H. C. Kendall's return visit was a blessing to all. Harvest Festival is in full swing at present, also an effort to repair the inside of the barracks.—W. J. Hamer.

STRATFORD. Adj't. Bross has been away on a special trip, and during his absence Captain Carter has taken charge. God has made him a great blessing to us, and souls have been won for the Master. Our earnest thanks and prayers go with Capt. Carter as he returns to Listowel, and we hope to have the joy of seeing him with us again ere long. The 20th meetings were a great success, much spiritual power resting upon the testimonies given A. well-wisher.

SYDNEY MINES. Our new hall is now under construction and we are publicizing One Soul. One backslidder returned to God this week. We have seen Capt. McElroy, who has come to lead us here.—Lieut. Stars.

TEMPLE. God is still giving us the Six Scouls at Meister. Victory, Monday, Aug 20th. Commissioner Ralton gave the lecture on Japan, and at the close of the meeting we were able to report a number of souls for salvation. On Saturday night our Band of Love gave a Temperance demonstration, and the recitations, songs, and stories were much appreciated. On Sunday God came very near, and at the close of the day we reported over five souls for salvation, making a total of twenty for the week. The Treasurer, Mrs. Springfield, reports victory in their Mercer meeting on Saturday night. Six souls gave themselves to God. God bless the League of Mercy.—R. B. L. for Adj't. and Mrs. McElroy.

PICTON. Last Thursday we had a visit from Six Scouls, our G. B. M. Agent, Capt. Hurd. He gave a "serepticon" service at night entitled "The Way to Heaven." The service was a beautiful one, and was enjoyed by all. We are very glad to report that our G. B. M. work is getting along splendidly. The Picton people give very liberally to this branch of the work. The Lord bless them. On Sunday, we had glorious meetings all day and God came very near. At the close of the night meeting six souls sought pardon. Our corps is getting along nicely under the leadership of Capt. Ash and Lieut. Spratt.—Corp.-Cadet Annie Wood.

WESTVILLE. Since last report we have seen Fifteen Scouls. Fifteen souls at the cross. Juniors held their's at Loch Brown; seniors at Little Harbour. The children gave a musical concert, which brought in $18. This went to pay for the hall chairs. Our worthy Sergeant-Major and his wife (Mrs. McElroy) paid a visit to Charlottetown, and report a pleasant time with comrades there. At present our comrades Mrs. Saunders and Mrs. Hamilton are visiting at Cape Breton. Sister Simpson left for Boston, while Capt. McCallum left for New York. Capt. Mercer, from Newfoundland, gave us a meeting. We enjoyed her very much. For the weekend we had Capt. White and Capt. Cavender with us. Capt. Cavender gave us a very nice lantern service. On Sunday afternoon Capt. Smith enrolled four beneath the flag. Friday night united meeting of New Glasgow and Sudbury corps. On Sunday our dear comrade Anna Hale, will farewell and enter the S. A. C. Corps. God bless him. Capt. Smith also reports on Sunday night a new boy-cadet was added to their home. Mrs. Smith is real well.

WETASKIWIN. We are busy preparing Thanksgiving and by having A.M. Wakefield and Half-Night of Prayer. And English Clarion with us on the first anniversary of the Salvation Army in this place. English Clarion, being the pioneer officer, was given a hearty welcome. During the past year 177 have professed salvation, and 22 have been enrolled under the Word and the flag. A supper was given on Monday night and proved a success, also a Thanksgiving meeting was held to thank God for His goodness. The proceedings terminated with a half-night of prayer.—Henry.

WINDSOR. We have just had a visit Capts. Maisey Seen from our Province of Ontario, and McLeod. Brigadier and Mrs. Hargrave. The weekend meetings were good. Splendid crowds came to hear the Gospel and both outside and in much interest was displayed. Mrs. Hargrave's singing was very popular. We regret that this was the Brigadier's last visit to us, but wish him God's blessing as he leaves our Province, and bespeak for our dear Provincial Officers a very hearty welcome to the Isd. The results of the weekend were good. The soul sought Jesus and the finances were about the average. The Captains Maisey were a lot to be seen and heard on that day.—S. E. C.

WINNIPEG I. On Saturday night our back Five Volunteers' dinner came back to God and we believe was truly reverent. Sunday morning five precious souls voluntarily came forward to consecrate their lives to God. In the afternoon one soul sought and found forgiveness at the feet of the Saviour. At the night service a Lieut. McLean, who has been with us for over a year, farewelled for Port Arthur, Ont. We pray God may bless her and make her a blessing to us.—M. Anna Irvine.

Lisgar Street Excursion and Picnic.

Capt. McFerrick is a hustler, and no mistake. Some time ago he conducted a most successful Moonlight Excursion, when a good profit was made, to be devoted to the Band Fund.

On Saturday last he arranged a picnic to Niagara Falls for the same purpose, and it was one of the best conducted affairs the writer has ever seen. There was not a single hitch in the arrangements, and the band and everybody conducted themselves as Salvationists should. The day was beautiful. The proprietors of the Hotel at Queen Victoria Park on the Canadian side, invited the band to play, and gave them a donation towards the work.

May God bless Lisgar St. corps and officers, and prosper the band.—J. S. P.

Salvation

We are indebted to Lieut.-Colonel for considerable information, both in the nature of the work and otherwise, concerning the Army. The Army is making a great kingdom of the Kaiser. The change in the attitude of the Army may be accounted for in the attitude of their august ruler. However, we appreciate the Colonels and give the following information with us:

The Colonels are very considerate Army, and give us every freedom of the law. I think it has not been slow to see that the factor in social reform.

The press is now largely controlled by the Colonels. The best spirits welcome us, have recognized the fact that it is in Germany to stay, having a root in the life of certain classes.

It is difficult to get suitable seating capacity in Germany. The halls are not very large, although which are of satisfactory dimensions. Hand we have generally sufficient. So far as I can judge we have

German Divisional attendance as in any country been in the country only two new to many phases of our work which may require modification.

On Sunday our audiences The people listen well. They have been during my short stay, new to many phases of our work which may require modification.

"No, not that," said he. "In this is the first time I have been in the Salvation Army, but it will not do anything now. I think it all thoroughly over."

This is probably typical. But they come to the place are convicted, although it is at times. The prayer meeting part of the meeting, but not sit there dumb and silent over him without limit until he will answer you, will reasons, want to know more of tongues, fishers and ships flying, and the whole involved in a hand-to-hand struggle are dealt with by an officer they are through they get more.

In a recent meeting at Oliphant during the recent following cases among the came forward: (1) a young man (2) an elderly gentleman, who cried very bitterly;

Tea was first introduced from China into Europe in 1618. The price in England at that time ranged from £8 to £10 a pound.

Salvation Triumphs in "Das Vaterland."

We are indebted to Lieut.-Colonel Friedrich for considerable information, both in private communications and otherwise, concerning the tremendous strides the Army is making in late years in the great kingdom of the Kaiser. Perhaps much of the change in the attitude of the people towards the Army may be accounted for by the friendly attitude of their august ruler towards our work. However, we appreciate the Colonel's remembrance and give the following information he has favored us with:—

The police are very considerate of the Salvation Army, and give us every freedom within the possibilities of the law. I think the authorities have not been slow to see that the Army is a beneficent factor in social reform.

The press is now largely coming over to our side. The best spirits welcome us, and wise public men have recognized the fact that the Salvation Army is in Germany to stay, having already taken deep root in the life of certain classes. The poor people hear us gladly.

It is difficult to get suitable halls with proper seating capacity in Germany. Of the whole our halls are not very large, although we have some which are of satisfactory dimensions. On the other hand we have generally sufficient for our crowds. So far as I can judge we have as good an average pinched and sorrowful looking; (4) a strapping big fellow, the driver of a beer wagon, out of whose pocket showed a newspaper parcel which contained his meager lunch; (5) a student with golden spectacles, cane, gloves, and stylish overcoat over his arm; lastly, a poor fallen girl who sobbed loudly as she threw herself down at the penitent form.

Speaking of the recent Congress, I must say that it was a great affair. According to the testimony of numerous old officers, it was the best of any held in Germany, it far exceeded my anticipations. The crowds at the public meetings packed the large halls in spite of the tropical heat. The General came over to Berlin to conduct the Officers' Councils, which were rich seasons of Spirit-baptism.

The march through Berlin was doubtless an eye-opener, also the huge open-air demonstration which followed.

By the way, our open-air opportunities are much more numerous than is generally supposed in other countries. Many of the score of corps in Berlin go on Sunday afternoon to some of the attractive suburban spots of which the capital has many. There in the woods, on the shores of one of the little lakes, in some open spot or in some public place, open-air meetings are conducted with much relish. At the close the corps marches with banner and band—if it has one or a part of one—to the attendance as in any country. Of course, I have been in the country only two months, and am still new to many phases of our work. I am aware I am giving you the impressions of a new-comer, which may require modification one way or another later on.

German Divisional Officers and Lieut.-Colonels Friedrich and Gauleit.

On Sunday our audiences are considered good. The people listen well. I have found everywhere I have been during my short experience that the crowds give the most exemplary attention. They also analyze one's talk. On one occasion I went to a bright, young artisan who had listened with remarkable attention to everything and also had given signs of conviction.

Was he saved?

"No, not that," said he, "but I have taken it all in. This is the first time I have been to the Salvation Army, but it will not be the last time. I can't do anything now. I must first go home and think it all thoroughly over!"

This is probably typical of our listeners.

But they come to the penitent form when they are convicted, although it takes a deal of conviction at times. The prayer meeting is often the noisiest part of the meeting, but the German sinner does not sit there dumb and allow you to pour eloquence over him without until he yields or flees. Nor will he answer you, will argue with you, demand reasons, want to know more, etc. You hear a babel of tongues, fiskers and sissers in discussion, hands flying, and the whole at times seems to be dissolved in a hand-to-hand fight, but through it all souls come to the penitent form, pray sincerely, are dealt with by an officer or sergeant, and when they are through they get up and make room for more.

In a recent meeting, conducted by Commissioner Oliphant during the recent Congress, I noted the following cases among the twenty penitents who came forward: (1) a young lady in elegant dress; (2) an elderly gentleman, of evident good standing, who cried very bitterly; (3) a poor elderly woman, railway station or street car terminus, arriving back in the city in time for the evening meeting, which does not begin until 8.15.

This plan is followed by nearly all corps throughout the Empire. On the occasion of a little excursion on Ascension Day (May 24th), when I was privileged to be present, we went to a neighboring little town, where we marched unmolested to our open-air, held in large gardens of restaurants. At night we had a large dancing hall seated with chairs, and closed a crowded gathering with twenty souls in the fountain.

In the public meetings the people sing well, and will pick up a chorus quickly. The meetings are as free-and-easy and the soldiers as enthusiastic as I have seen anywhere. The officers have to work on somewhat different lines in some respects; their War Cry selling, for instance, is mostly done between 10 at night and 1 in the morning, in the cafes and concert gardens. This work is very interesting, and many incidents could be given, but space and editorial scissors forbid.

The Social Work—whatever may be thought of our Spiritual Work—finds universal recognition and praise. Every one of the seventeen Social Institutions in the land can show good work done, and some Homes are over-taxed.

The authorities in several places have so convinced themselves of the splendid achievements of our Homes that they co-operate with us, and in two cases have begun to subsidize our efforts in a modest way. We are thankful for the beginning.

Commissioner and Mrs. Oliphant have achieved much during their stay, and they are untiring in their efforts to push the work.

The Bible is the time-table, but it is by no means the ticket to Heaven.

Make the most of your everyday chances to serve your father and mother.

Lieut.-Col. Sharp's Farewell Campaign

The Glace Bay Meeting.

The limited time at their disposal prevented Colonel and Mrs. Sharp from making an extended trip, consequently three centres were chosen for their farewell meetings, namely, Glace Bay, Halifax, and St. John. The writer was delegated to plot the campaign through.

Over five years has elapsed since the Colonel, in his capacity as P. O. of the Eastern Province, made his first visit to Glace Bay, then only comparatively a village. Well do we remember its ungraded streets, and the absence of anything like sidewalks. Presto, change! What a transformation. What do we see? Splendid streets, electric car service, the modern houses, with every regard to sanitation and sewerage matters. Glace Bay is nothing if it is not progressive, and continual evidences of its constant advance are manifested on every hand.

Colonel and Mrs. Sharp have made lasting inroads into the affections and esteem of the citizens of this hub of industry. On all sides expressions of regret at their departure were forthcoming—from His Worship the Mayor to the humblest citizen.

The crowds were record-breakers, notwithstanding that Old Sol was more than in evidence—the heat being terrific.

What shall we say of the meetings? We can but epitomise the same. The Colonel's Sunday addresses rank among the most powerful of his career, and many were the favorable comments heard, and quite a few speakers referred to the great blessing and inspiration they had proved. Mrs. Sharp spoke with her earnest and sympathetic manner, carrying her audience at every point.

The band—over thirty pieces—was to the front all day and worked like Trojans. Their magnificent playing is the topic of the hour.

The Monday afternoon was devoted to the officers—those who had gathered from the surrounding corps. The tea and council was a very home-like gathering. The after-tea speeches were heart-talks. And while the thought that it was in all probability the last gathering many would be permitted to attend, as all farewell functions are tinged more or less with the spirit of sadness, yet there was a predominating sense of thankfulness for all the blessing and inspiration that our departing leaders had proved to be to those present. It can well be imagined by those who know Colonel and Mrs. Sharp that their parting counsel to their officers was of that character that shall linger long in their memories.

The meeting at night was a thorough representative one. The different speakers—soldiers, locals, and officers—each enlighened the past administration of the departing P. O.'s. They had come—“a gone to Glace Bay, and every time they had come it was to have a hearty welcome.” The huge crowd at that last meeting said with no uncertain sound that its desire and prayer was that in the order of God's providence it may be possible to welcome back our beloved leaders to the Eastern Province.

The open-air demonstration was stupendous—especially the Monday night. What a surging crowd pressed around the stage. The rendering of that realistic solo by Bandman Auld was one of the most impressive things the writer has ever heard. It gripped the crowd and will have its results in the days to come.

The financial results of the campaign were very gratifying—something like $75 being the aggregate. The spiritual results cannot be reckoned by the five who came to the mercy seat during the Sunday meetings. The offering results must be left until the last reveille has been sounded; till then we have pledged to be faithful, and meet our leaders at the minister roll on the great review day. Thus ends the first part of the farewell campaign. Halifax next—G. L. P.

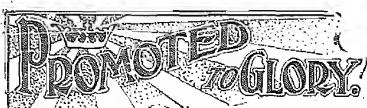

An Alaskan Trip.

Our P. O., Brigadier Smeeton, gave our District a visit. The writer joined him on the S.S. Cottage City in the early hours of July 31st, bound for Douglas. We arrived there in time for meeting Capt. Gardiner, with Sgt.-Major Betts and soldiers, met us at the wharf. They went in for a good meeting, while Bob went to Juneau on other business.

Next morning the P. O. and his chum went to Killisnoo, and had an interesting time. They were perfectly delighted with the place. While we were at Killisnoo Capt. Gardiner and the D. O. were busy marrying people, also pointing sinners to Jesus. Capt. and Mrs. Quick are coming to Douglas. The Brigadier gave Sgt.-Major Betts her commission. She has done well.

We left for Wrangell Aug. 5th, arriving an hour ahead of meeting time. On coming to the wharf we saw the happy face of our faithful Sgt.-Major Tom Tamaree and the soldiers. We held a meeting in the Red Man's Hall, kindly loaned for the occasion. The Brigadier gave a very straight talk on man's duty to make the very best of his life for God, and but for the very wet night many more would have been out. As it was we had a good number out. We also had a soldiers' meeting on Monday night. The Brigadier loves to see and talk to his soldiers, and they enjoyed his words of advice.

We regretted much we could not get to Skagway and Klavock. We enjoyed your visit, Brigadier. Come again—Adj't. Robt. Smith, D. O.

TWO BOWMANVILLE WARRIORS GONE HOME.

Thomas Hoar.

Scarcely has time healed the pain in our hearts by the death of dear Mother Gilbert, than another loss has come to us in the sad and sudden death of our dear brother, Mr. Thomas Hoar.

Mr. Hoar was a native of Cornwall, England, and came with his parents to Canada in the year 1832, settling in Bowmanville, where he has spent all his life time. He was converted in his youth, and joined the Primitive Methodist Church, and was a pillar of strength to that society, being Superintendent of the Sabbath School, choir leader, and a general helper. At the time of church union, some years ago, Mr. Hoar did not fall in line with the movement, and as the Army was in town, he fell in love with them, and has been a faithful follower of the Salvation Army ever since. He was always at his post, ever ready to sing, speak, or pray, or anything else for his Master's sake. He was always cheerful and happy, and was a general favorite with old and young. A blacksmith by trade, he made a comfortable living, and was able to retire from business about sixteen years ago. Since that time he has spent much time in traveling and sight-seeing. Hundreds of readers of the local paper will remember with interest the many letters written by the "Wandering Boy." He has made different trips to England, Ireland, Scotland, and France. He was familiar with all the great Northwest and Western States; knew all about California, and was perfectly at home in San Francisco, and on hearing of the earthquake, he determined to go and see the ruins. About a week after he started for the scene of the disaster, the startling news came home that Mr. Hoar was killed—struck by an electric car. The whole town was wrapt in gloom and sadness. How we thought of his last meeting, his last song, "Nearer, my God, to Thee," his last testimony, and earnest appeal to the unconverted.

One week from the day of his death the body arrived home. The funeral was largely attended, the service being conducted by Rev. Mr. Goodwin, an old personal friend, the town ministers, and Capt. G. Lamb also being present.

An interesting memorial service was held in the S. A. hall on Sunday evening, conducted by Adj't. Smith, assisted by Capt. Annenfeld, Lieut. Marshall, and Sergt. Wm. Marshall. Major Cass, of Kansas City, who is here on furlough, was also present and spoke a few words.

William Warder.

William Warder, one of our Methodist friends, departed this life on Aug. 31. He was a native of the Isle of Wight, was a genuine Christian, a lover of the Army, and a constant and welcome attendant at all our meetings. Our dear friends visited him in his sickness and found him happy and trusting in the Lord, whom he served so faithfully through all the changing scenes of life. We will miss him in our meetings, but we look forward to the time when our songs will mingle together again in the land where we shall sing the new song. The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. Jolliffe, T. W. Jolliffe, and Capt. Annenfeld. —M. D. M.

MR. WILEY, OF ST. THOMAS.

We have just heard that Brother Wiley has passed into eternity. He met with an accident in the train smash here some time ago, and was so badly injured that he only survived two days. Mr. Wiley was a constant attendant at knee-drill and was often present at our other meetings. We know that he has gone to be with Jesus, as he left a blessed testimony behind. Our sympathy is extended to the bereaved friends of the deceased.

J. S. S.M. GRAY, OF COLLINGWOOD.

We have lost a loyal, faithful soldier of twenty-one years' standing, J. S. S.M. Gray. His last testimony in the open air was, "I am ready." Our hearts go in sympathy and prayer for the bereaved ones.—Gladie.

BROTHER JAMES BOUTCHER, OF MUSSEL HARBOR ARM.

Again we are reminded that in the midst of life we are in death. This time the call came to Brother James Bouthcer, and thank God, he was ready for it. About two years ago Brother Bouthcer gave his heart to God in his own home, and on the following Sunday morning attended the knee-drill, where he gave a clear testimony and related what God had done for him. Of late Brother Bouthcer had been a great sufferer, but in all his sickness he showed the greatest patience and faith in God. His dear wife, who was by his side day and night, learned many valuable lessons by his whole-heartedness and devotion to God's service. Time after time, when he was very weak, he urged her to attend the meeting and go her regular rounds with the War Cry. Brother Bouthcer wasn't a soldier, but before he died requested his wife to have him taken to Arnold's Cove, and have him buried by the officer of the corps. Then he asked his wife and step-daughter to meet him in heaven. They promised they would. He then lifted his eyes to heaven and in a moment his spirit went to God. The service at the barracks was very impressive. After a short prayer Sergt.-Major Malcolm Peach was called upon to speak. He spoke of our brother's faithful life, and urged all the comrades to be faithful. Then his dear wife, who is a soldier, spoke of her husband's life and triumphant death. As she spoke people were sobbing all over the building. Then the Captain read from God's Word and spoke to the hearts of the people. We then marched off to the cemetery, where, after a short service, we pledged ourselves to be true. Brother Bouthcer is dead, but his life still lives. He leaves behind a wife, one son, his mother, and two brothers, to whom we extend our sincerest sympathy.—A. Mercer.

Ottawa District Notes.

Farewell of Brigadier Turner.

The Ottawa District Headquarters was the scene of unusual activity on Thursday, Aug. 23rd, it being the farewell of Brigadier Turner to this particular portion of his Province. During the afternoon an officers' council was held. The Brigadier presided and gave some good, sound, fatherly advice concerning the war.

The united city corps, with officers, shortly before six o'clock took their places for a farewell tea. After all had partaken of this great family feast, Adj't. Crichton, as District Officer, called upon the Brigadier for a speech. His rising to respond was the signal for a rousing reception. He urged all to stand true to God and fight a good fight, upholding the yellow, red, and blue. This was followed by a rousing open-air, in which visiting officers and soldiers participated, returning to the citadel at 8 p.m., where the final meeting took place. The brass band played special selections. Bandmaster Harris and Capt. Thompson, of Smith's Falls, soloed, and a few testimonies were given by different officers and comrades. Sergt.-Major Webber, being Ottawa's senior Sergeant-Major, presented the Brigadier with an address on behalf of the two corps. Adj't. Crichton then presented an address on behalf of the District. Ensign Clark and Capt. Bearshell spoke on behalf of the men, and Staff-Capt. Ellery on behalf of the women officers concerning the great blessing and help the Brigadier had been to them. The Brigadier expressed himself as being unable to reply to the addresses and the many nice things said concerning him, but he reviewed the work during the last five and a half years of his charge, and was able to show a great advance, and he believed the prospects were great for the future. He also spoke of the devotion and earnestness of the soldiers of his domain, and then wished all good-bye on behalf of himself and family.

In the Military School, Paris, in a yard adjoining the scene of his degradation eleven years ago, Major Dreyfus was, on July 21st, reinstated as a soldier of the Republic, and was presented with the Cross of the Legion of Honor. The presentation was made by General Gillain, who embraced the Major and kissed him on both cheeks. At the same time Major Targe was also decorated. At a window in the courtyard was General Picquart, who was greatly instrumental in proving Major Dreyfus' innocence. The fearfully romantic experience of this man, because a Jew, could scarcely be believed, except that it is so well established. Banished to Devil's Isle, off the coast of French Guiana, for four years, where he was treated worse than a felon, passing through hundred deaths, but determined to live for the sake of his wife and children, to whom he was greatly attached, he was at length given a new trial, and the final issue is shown in the illustration. Nearly all his false accusers have died, either suddenly or by suicide, and the others are disgraced.

Eastern Event.

The Farewell meetings of Colonel and Mrs. from Halifax.

The strong hold which Colonel and Mrs. Sharp have on the affections of the officers, soldiers, and friends of the Salvation Army in Halifax was strikingly exemplified in the farewell meetings which they held here yesterday, before taking their departure for their new field of labor in Western Ontario.

Previous to the public meeting a united officers' and soldiers' tea was held in the junior hall of N.S. barracks, at which the Colonel and Mrs. Sharp spoke briefly, thanking the soldiers for the many manifestations of love they had received during their stay in the Eastern Province.

Following the tea came the evening meeting. Among the large number present I noticed Major Phillips, who presided; Adj't. Cummins, who two years spent in the Klondyke, is visiting Macdonald in Halifax; Ensign J. Green, of Amherst; Capt. White, of Truro; Capt. Lee, of Sydney, in an assorted company of slimmers saved by grace divine. The veteran warriors of the early days, converts of last Sunday's meetings, and representatives of every branch of the Army's work in Halifax were to be seen on the platform.

The meeting opened with that good old war cry, "God is keeping His soldiers fighting." After the usual preliminaries, Major Phillips gave a short account of the wonderful advance which he had made during his five years of Colonel Sharp's administration. He then called on the following parties to speak on behalf of the various interests they represented: Friends of the Army—Ex-Capt. Frank A. Green; Dartmouth corps—Treas. Ritchie; Halifax H. Corp—Sergt.-Major M. Mills; Women Soldiers—Supt. Mrs. Nicholson; Men Officers—Capt. H. Hartigan; Women Officers—Mrs. Capt. Oglethorpe; Social S. S.—Ensign P. Parsons; Rescue Work—Capt. F. R. Wilkes. After the various speakers had told of the high esteem in which the Colonel and his good wife were held by all in the meeting, Adj't. Jeudah presented them with a formal farewell address, which both replied, telling of the many blessings and acts of kindness they had received in Halifax, and expressing the hope that they might be permitted in the future to return again. With the Colonel's address the meeting was brought to a close.

Colonel and Mrs. Sharp leave us with our respects, our affections, and our prayers for their future success. By their godly lives and example they have taken a large place in our hearts, and while we extend to their successors a most cordial welcome, they will continue to live in our affections: May God's richest blessing attend them.—Ranger.

OUR HUSTLERS HONOR ROLL

On, where I and oh, where have our brave gone?

We want to be hearing from busy St. John

And you, in the Islands where codfish are ca

Hov many fine Crys have your customers

Hello there, B. C.! You've ordered a rise,

But where are the lists of the boomers of Hurrrah for the W.O.P.s! They're 36 strong

And gallantly they're marching to victory alone

And down Montreal way they're sculling a

You've done quite a jump there in Bielefeld,

For once in the T. H. P. Lippincott jeans,

And Corps-Cadet Williams the top name no

Come, stir about, Hamilton; Brother Geor

is 20 the utmost amount you can sell?

Oh, Walker the valiant, the great land of J

Most surely be proud to have you on the

And Hoddinghott, too, of Orillia town,

You surely can keep up your boomers ren

Now Petersen, come, over fifty you carry

As you trot round the streets of that

Barrie;

Three comrades you've got I observe by the

So keep up your courage and boom, boom

To one and to all who are pushing this w

The Editor says, "May you never give o'

KINDLY DROP
ME A LINE

Will They Take the Hint?

But fight on in faith with the purpose
Of seeking for sinners and pulling 'em in
Now doubtless you're tired of this ver
So here is some prose—just read it—

Walls Have Ears.

A boomer on his weekly round stay and with his practice, to pray with him

Next door to one of these lived a religion as a one-day-a-week affair, but troubled herself about actual salvation

This young woman heard through the prayer of the Salvationist
it set up within her a longing to poss or what she had heard.

Not long afterwards she was con
menced to wear uniform.

Then she volunteered for officership
in training.

West Ontario Province

36 Boomers

CAPT. E. PATTENDEN, GUELPH

Adj't. Kendall, Brantford

Mrs. Toft, Chatham

Lieut. Pearson, Goderich

Capt. Cilansmith, Sarnia

Mrs. Capt. McLeod, Stratford

Mrs. Capt. Summer, Stratford

Mrs. Capt. Merritt, Woodstock

Mrs. Capt. Sharp, Essex

Lieut. Simpson, Seaford

Capt. Garside, Tillsonburg

Sister Water, Ridgewood

Lieut. Dreisinger, Dresden

Capt. Croxman, Windsor

Lieut. Wimbley, Leamington, 94

Woodstock, 90; Lieut. Wadroff,

Sergt. Wimbley, Brantford, 88; Mrs.

Ensign LeCocq, Petrolia, 88; Lieut.

Bond, Galt, 80; Capt. Horwood,

Norwich, 80; Lieut. Crawford, Li

Askin, Forest, 75; Mrs. Ensign

70; Capt. Kitchen, Wallaceburg,

Bothwell, 66; Ensign Hancock,

Herrington, Clinton, 60; Capt. Gandy,

50 copies.—On Johnston, Hesp

Goodwin, Windsor; Mrs. Capt. Capt.

Capt. Jones, London.

Eastern Events

II meetings of Colonel and Mrs. from Halifax.

hold which Colonel and Mrs. affections of the officers, soldiers, & Salvation Army in Halifax were expressed. In the farewell meetings held yesterday, before taking their new field of labor in Western Province.

the public meeting a united meeting was held in the junior hall at which the Colonel and Mrs. thanked the soldiers for the tokens of love they had received from the Eastern Province.

the tea came the evening meeting, large number present I noticed that presided; Adj't. Cumming, was also in the Klondyke, is visiting the Army of Truro; Capt. Lee of Peterborough, a company of sinners saved by the eternal warriors of the early days of Sunday's meetings, and reported branch of the Army's work in the seen on the platform.

opened with that good old song, is keeping His soldiers fighting" at preliminaries. Major Phillips of the wonderful advance which the Eastern Province had made during the Colonel Sharp's administration, the following parties to speak of various interests they represented.

Army—Ex-Capt. Frank A. Givens—Treas. Richter, Halifax; Capt. M. Mills; Women Soldiers—Sgt. Men Officers—Capt. H. Hargrave—Mrs. Capt. Ogilvie; Social Work; Persons; Rescue Work—Capt. P. L. the various speakers had told of the which the Colonel and his good wife in the meeting, Adj't. Joseph with a formal farewell address, told, of the many blessings in the hope that they might be picture to return again. With the meeting was brought to a

rs. Sharp leave us with our regards and our prayers for their future prosperity and example they have in our hearts, and while we successors a most cordial welcome to live in our affections. May those attending them.—Ranger.

The Reinstatement and Decoration of Captain (now Major) Dreyfus.

1.—Major Dreyfus and Major Targe both decorated with the Legion of Honor.

2.—After the Decoration—Major Dreyfus honorably escorted to his place.

West Ontario Province.

36 Boomers.

CAPT. E. PATTENDEN, GUELPH	190
Adj't. Kendall, Brantford	189
Mrs. Teft, Chatham	179
Lieut. Pearson, Goderich	165
Capt. Clinansmith, Sarnia	155
Mrs. Capt. McLeod, Stratford	130
Mrs. Sumner, Stratford	118
Mrs. Capt. Merrett, Woodstock	105
Lieut. Simpson, Seaford	105
Capt. Garside, Tillsonburg	100
Sister Watt, Ridgeway	100
Lieut. Dressler, Dresden	100
Capt. Crossman, Windsor	100
Lieut. Wakesfield, Lacombe, 99; Mrs. Deadman, Woodstock, 90; Lieut. Waldron, Palmerston, 90; Sergt. Wimble, Brantford, 86; Mrs. Ensign LeCocq, Ensign LeCocq, Petrolia, 85; Lieut. Dayton, Capt. Bond, Galt, 80; Capt. Horwood, Lieut. Pearson, Norwich, 80; Lieut. Crawford, Listowel, 80; Capt. Askin, Forest, 75; Mrs. Ensign Habcock, Simcoe, 70; Capt. Kitchen, Wallaceburg, 65; Lieut. King, Bothwell, 65; Ensign Hancock, Sarnia, 65; Capt. Herrington, Clinton, 60; Capt. Crisit, Wallaceburg, 60.	60
50 Copies.—Ola Johnston, Hespeler; Staff-Captain Goodwin, Windsor; Mrs. Capt. Clinansmith, Sarnia; Capt. Jones, London.	50

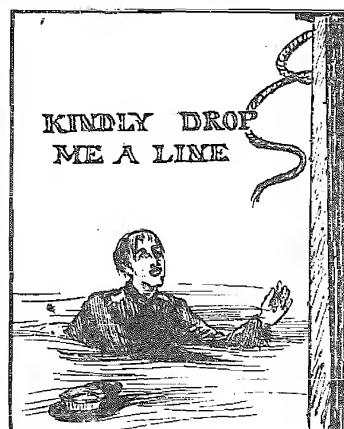

your innocence. The fearlessness, except that it is ana, for four years, where determined to live for the give a new trial, and have died, either suddenly,

OUR HUSTLERS HONOR ROLL

On where art thou, where have our brave boomers gone?

We want to be hearing from busy St. John. And you, in the island where codfish are caught, How many fine Crys have your customers bought? Hello there, B. C.! You've ordered a rise, But where are the lists of the boomers of Crys? Hurrah for the W.O.P.'s! They're 36 strong, Hurrah for the W.O.P.'s! They're 36 strong, And gaily they're marching to victory along; And down Montreal way they're selling a few. You've done quite a jump there in Belleville, Du Feu. For once in the T. H. P. Lippincott leads, And Corps-Cadet Williams the top name now reads. Come, stir about, Hamilton; Brother George Dell, is 20 the utmost amount you can sell? Oh, Walker the valiant, the great land of Nod Must surely be proud to have you on the job; And Hoddinott, too, of Orillia town. You surely can keep up your boomers' renown. Now Petersen, come, over fifty you carry As you trot round the streets of that wonderful Barrie;

Three comrades you've got I observe by the way, So keep up your courage and boom, boom away. To one and to all who are pushing this war The Editor says, "May you never give o'er,

Will They Take the Hint?

But fight on in faith with the purpose in view Of seeking for sinners and pulling 'em through. Now doubtless you're tired of this versified style, So here is some prose—just read it—and smile.

Walls Have Ears.

A boomer on his weekly round stayed, in accordance with his practice, to pray with his customers. Next door to one of these lived a girl who took religion as a one-day-a-week affair, but had never troubled her elf about actual salvation from sin. This young woman heard through the wall of the house the prayer of the Salvationist next door, and it set up within her a longing to possess something of what she had heard.

Not long afterwards she was converted and commenced to wear uniform.

Then she volunteered for officership. She is now in training.

THE WAR CRY.

East Ontario Province.

31 Boomers.	300
Capt. Du Feu, Belleville	299
Mrs. Ensign Clarke, Paubroke	130
P. S. M. Gilbert, Smith's Falls	115
Lieut. Muir, Campbellford	109
Capt. Oldfield, Quebec	106
Sergt. Armstrong, Montreal I.	100
90 and Over.—Sergt. Norman, Kingston.
80 and Over.—Capt. McFadden, Deseronto; P. S. M. Rogers, Montreal IV.; Capt. Davis, Cobourg.
70 and Over.—Lieut. Ramer, Carlton Place; J. S. M. Fraser, Montreal V.; Sergt. Clapp, Peterborough.
60 and Over.—Mrs. Ensign Bradbury, Morrisburg; Sergt. Massey, Sergt. Brown, Lieut. Garlan, Kingston; Lieut. Penn, Picton; Lieut. Lawrence, Sherbrooke; P. S. M. Fraser, Montreal V.

50 and Over.—Capt. Forbes, Sherbrooke; Lieut. Mercer, Smith's Falls; Bro. Sousie, Ottawa II.; Lieut. Williams, Montreal I.; Capt. Liddell, Lieut. Nicholson, Nanapie; Sergt. Brown, Sister Rees, Kingston; Capt. Nelson, Trenton; Lieut. Simmons, Iroquois.	160
Capt. Burges, Toronto Junction	100
Sergt. Bradley, Temple, 90; Mrs. Cowie, Temple, 85; Lieut. Carey, Newmarket, 80; Lieut. Thompson, Yorkville, 80; Lieut. Kelley, Niagara Falls, 75; Lieut. Price, St. Catharines, 72; Capt. Magwood, Lieut. Patrick, Hamilton II., 60; Mrs. Bowers, Lisgar St., 66; Lena Latmer, Riverdale, 54.
50 and Under.—Lieut. Bradley, Goo, Barrett, Temple; Capt. Layman, Niagara Falls; Capt. Macdonald, Yorkville; Lieut. McQueen, Capt. Thomas, Dumias; Mrs. Millard, Lisgar St.; Sergt. Walte, Temple; Bro. Woodward, Bro. Putter, C. C. Gibbs, Lippincott; E. Pointon, C. Pointon, Bro. Tuck, Sister L. Kent, Lisgar St.; Bro. Goo, Bell, Hamilton III.

Training Home Province.

29 Boomers.	160
C. C. WILLIAMS, LIPPINCOTT	160
Sergt. Mrs. Moore, Riverdale	140
Capt. Burges, Toronto Junction	100
Sergt. Bradley, Temple, 90; Mrs. Cowie, Temple, 85; Lieut. Carey, Newmarket, 80; Lieut. Thompson, Yorkville, 80; Lieut. Kelley, Niagara Falls, 75; Lieut. Price, St. Catharines, 72; Capt. Magwood, Lieut. Patrick, Hamilton II., 60; Mrs. Bowers, Lisgar St., 66; Lena Latmer, Riverdale, 54.

50 and Under.—Lieut. Bradley, Goo, Barrett, Temple; Capt. Layman, Niagara Falls; Capt. Macdonald, Yorkville; Lieut. McQueen, Capt. Thomas, Dumias; Mrs. Millard, Lisgar St.; Sergt. Walte, Temple; Bro. Woodward, Bro. Putter, C. C. Gibbs, Lippincott; E. Pointon, C. Pointon, Bro. Tuck, Sister L. Kent, Lisgar St.; Bro. Goo, Bell, Hamilton III.	160
--	-----

North Ontario Division.

24 Boomers.	180
CAPT. A. WALKER, SOO, ONTARIO	180
Mrs. Adj't. Hodenott, Orillia	140
P. S. M. Mrs. Jones, Huntsville	120
Capt. Hall, Bracebridge	100
Lieut. Wilkins, Parry Sound, 85; Capt. Duckworth, Sung-on-Pads, 80; Capt. A. Jordan, Barrie, 75; Adj't. Mercer, North Bay, 60; Mrs. Capt. Culver, Soo, 50; Christian Da, by New Liskeard, 58; Lieut. Chapman, 57; Lieut. Crowther, Kinmount, 57; Lieut. G. Peterson, Barrie, 55.

50 and Under.—Adj't. McCana, Capt. Dauberhile, Lumsden; Capt. Stelle, Gravenhurst; Captain Whales, Burk's Falls; Annie Jag, Barrie; Mrs. Coombes, Barrie; Capt. Culver, Soo; Miss Sicilia Pasquere, North Bay; Bro. Nelson, Lindsay; Mrs. DeKalb, Soo, Oct.; P. S. M. Miles, Barrie.	180
--	-----

North-West Province.

20 Boomers.	250
LIEUT. MCLENNAN, WINNIPEG I.	250
Capt. Shepherd, Winnipeg I.	245
Capt. Chivers, Edmonton	240
Mrs. Ensign Taylor, Brandon	175
Ensign Wilson, Calgary	170
Lieut. Norman, Saskatoon	160
Lieut. Mirey, Prince Albert	155
Ensign Crego, Fort William	125
Lieut. Johnson, Port Arthur	125
Ensign Howcroft, Medicine Hat	110
Capt. B. Cameron, Wetaskiwin, 90; Capt. Cole, Regina, 90; Lieut. Plesler, Lethbridge, 73; Lieut. Dilbough, Portage, 73; Lieut. Soorman, 72; Lieut. Keno, Kenora, 70; Ensign Culbert, Lieut. Watson, Moose Jaw, 55; Uncle Reece, Neepawa, 40; Capt. Keeler, Carberry, 40.

Eastern T. F. S. Notes.

By Capt. Cavender.

My first weekend was spent at Digby, the famous summer resort. Had a fine crowd to the lantern service. Ensign Pearce and Capt. Wylde did well in announcing my visit.

My next stop was Yarmouth, where I found Capt. Redmond and Greenlade in good spirits. We had a full house, and found the G. B. M. in good standing. I appointed Sister Jackson as Agent. She is believed to make the G. B. M. work hum.

I crossed the water to Clark's Harbor. Captain and Mrs. Dakin held this fort. I spent the weekend here and had a grand time.

Bridgewater. I met Capt. Backus, with his smiles. He had the service well announced, and we had a splendid time here. The Captain and his Lieutenant are doing well.

Kentville. Capt. Robinson and his Lieutenant are by no means dead, but had things up-to-date. I appointed Sister Kent as Agent. She is bound to keep up her office. All power to you, Sister Kent!

Windsor. Good crowd. Ensign Sabine and Capt. Payne are pushing the war here.

Truro. Capt. F. White made things pleasant. We had a packed house. Lantern service took well. My Agent, Miss Goode, did real well. She takes delight in her work.

Sydney. Ensign Greenland expected a good crowd and we were not disappointed. I appointed Sister Benell Agent. She thinks the outlook is bright for G. B. M. here. I also visited North Sydney and Inverness, and had a good crowd at each place.

Westville. Found my Agent doing well. Had a fine lantern service here, and good meetings on Sunday. My Agent, Dan Hale, drops the G. B. M. mantle and goes in College this session. Dan has the blessing of his comrade here as he leaves for the front. I appointed Bro. Scott Agent. This Scotch lad will push the G. B. M.

I have found on my first trip nothing but kindness on every hand. May God bless my Agents. Am saved and trusting.

Captain Gardiner in Alaska.

His Voyage, Welcome, and First Meetings.

After spending a few months at Carberry, Man., orders came for the Indian Work in Alaska, and I began to prepare for the long journey. A few days later I was in Vancouver, and from there I set sail with Brigadier Smeeton and Little Herbert, on the S.S. Princess Beatrice for my final destination. Our first stop was at Alert Bay, and while the freight was being unloaded the passengers took the opportunity of Viewing an Indian Village.

The old customs seemed prevalent there, and many totem poles were to be seen. When we reached Queen Charlotte Sound and got into the open sea, it began to get very rough, and for some hours we experienced a good deal of tossing about. Next morning the sun shone brightly and our attention was drawn to the numerous whales which were spouting around us. We reached Port Essington the next morning, and visited Adj't. and Mrs. Gosling and Capt. Halpin at the quarters. After a few hours' stay we started off again, accompanied by the Adj't. and his little boy as far as Port Simpson. Here we met Adj't. and Mrs. Blackburn and Capt. T. Smith, and were able to stay about half an hour there. Taking Capt. Smith on board we set off again and soon reached Kuhikan, where Brigadier Smeeton

Changed Boats for Wrangell

and Capt. Smith for Shakan. I stayed on the boat until we arrived at Juneau, where I transferred to a smaller steamer and went on to Douglas. Sergt. Major Mrs. Beets and her braves were just coming in from the march, and I received a right royal welcome in native style. It was quite a surprise to the comrades, as they were not expecting anyone in for some time. My first impression of these comrades was that they were earnest, enthusiastic workers, doing their best for God and souls.

The Large Treadwell Gold Mines

near here employ many hundreds of hands. One shaft had gone to the depth of 1,300 feet.

On Tuesday Brigadier Smeeton and Adj't. Smith arrived and conducted a meeting, and on Wednesday two of our comrades were married—Bro. James Grant and Sister Nahagash. After the ceremony the mother of the bride made her way to the pelican form and found pardon, while later on the father came also.

Blessed by an Open-Air Meeting.

Whilst an open-air meeting was in progress in the city of Montreal, a note was handed to the officer which ran as follows:

Dear Brothers and Sisters in the Lord—It does me good to listen to you testifying for Christ. I pray that God will touch every heart that listens. Every time I hear your beautiful music and singing I say in my heart, "God bless the Salvation Army." I have been very sick for a long time, but thank God I am much better, but still very weak. Will you please to kindly remember me in your prayers, that the Lord will restore me to my wonted health and strength again.—From a sister you wishes you every blessing."

A Whole Seat to Herself.

The old lady with the haloed bonnet was in the city visiting her son. She had come around to the meeting at the nearest corps and joyfully given her testimony. She did not often have the privilege of being in an Army meeting, and she made the most of it.

"There is no Army out where I live, except me," she told the folks, "so I go to the Methodists and Church of England, too. At first they kept clear of me, and I had a whole seat to myself whenever I went. They are getting more friendly now, however. I go around visiting them, and pray in every house that God's blessing shall rest upon them. Oh, praise the Lord, He is keeping me true, though I have to stand alone."

SERVANTS' REGISTRY.

Girls coming to the city for service should write first to Brigadier Stewart, or come direct to his office at the Temple, cor. James and Albert Streets, to register. We are in a position to find the best situations, as well as take a kindly interest in girls whose home is outside the city, and are ready to assist them in all possible ways.

THE SALVATION ARMY

HARVEST FESTIVAL

SEPT. 22 to 25

Be it known unto you, that if the windows of heaven were open, there would not be room enough to receive it. — Mal. iii. 10.

ALL GIFTS GRATEFULLY RECEIVED
PROCEEDS GIVEN TO SICK OFFICERS
POOR CORPS FUNDS. Etc.

BRING YOUR GIFT

“Bring ye all the tithe into the storehouse and PROVE ME NOW herewith, saith the Lord.”

Tune.—God Gave His Son (N.B.B. 262).

1 Saviour, I long to be Nearer to Thee!
In word, and deed, and thought,
Holy to be!
Oh, take this heart of mine,
And seal me ever Thine,
Fill me with love divine,
For service, Lord.

Make me a blazing fire,
Where'er I go,
That to a dying world
Thee I may show;
How Thou hast bled and died
That none may be denied,
But in Thy bleeding side
A refuge find.

So shall my moments flow
In praising Thee!
For Thou hast never failed
To strengthen me!
Filled with the Holy Ghost,
Saved to the uttermost,
In Christ alone I'll boast,
And forward go!

Tune.—My Soul is Now United (N.B.B. 101); Ellacombe (N.B.B. 30).

2 My soul is now unit'd
To Christ, the living Vine;
His grace I long have slighted,
But now I feel Him mine.

I was to God a stranger,
Till Jesus took me in;
He freed my soul from danger,
And pardoned all my sin.

By floods and flames surrounded,
I still my way pursued;
Nor shall I be confounded,
With glory in my view.

Still Christ is my salvation—
What can I covet more?
I fear no condemnation.
My Father's wrath is o'er.

Tune.—The Day of Victory (N.B.B. 97).
3 March on, Salvation Soldiers,
March forward to the fight,
With Jesus as our leader,
We'll put the foes to flight;
In spite of men and devils we'll raise our banner
high,
For the day of victory's coming by-and-bye.

Chorus.
The day of victory's coming it's coming by-and-bye,

Hell's forces may be mighty—
A strong opposing band;
Yet never be discouraged,
For your Captain boldly stand;
With blood-and-fire we'll conquer, out every foe defy,
For the day of victory's coming by-and-bye.

Tunes.—Come, Comrades Dear (N.B.B. 136); He Lives (N.B.B. 138).

4 Come, comrades dear, who love the Lord,
Who taste the sweets of Jesus' word,
In Jesus' way go on;
Our troubles and our trials here
Will only make us richer there,
When we arrive at home.

We feel that heaven is now begun;
It issues from the sparkling throne,
From Jesus' throne on high.
It comes in floods we can't contain,
We drink, and drink, and drink again,
And yet we still are dry.

And when we come to dwell above,
And all surround the throne of love,
We'll drink a full supply;
Jesus will lead His soldiers forth,
To living streams of richest worth
That never will run dry.

Tunes.—Death is Coming (N.B.B. 131); Pass Me Not (B.J. 14).

5 Pass me not, oh, loving Saviour,
Hear my humble cry;
While on others Thou art calling,
Do not pass me by!

AN OLD, BUT BEAUTIFUL, SOLO.

Tune—Juanita.

Long o'er the mountains
My poor soul had gone astray,
In blackest darkness,
Dreaming 'twas day.
Hast'ning fast to destruction,
Dreaming still that all was well,
Oh, so heedless of danger,
Going down to hell.

But Jesus, dear Jesus,
You were ever at my side,
Entreating and pleading—
"For thee I died!"

I heard Thy wooring,
Yet sped on my mad career,
Satan deceiving
Said, "Hope is near."
Passed by all warning,
Yet my soul would heave a sigh,
Thy clear voice still pleading—
"Why wilt thou die?"

Roused from my dreaming,
My soul's eyes were opened wide,
Hell frowned before me,
Remorse my guide;
My sad heart relenting,
While my sins rose mountains high,
Satan still blessing—
"Your time's gone by!"

Then joy like sunbeams
Breaking through the clouded sky,
Sweet light in darkness,
Bright hope drew nigh;
Sweet the voice now pleading,
Coming from the rugged tree,
And with blood still streaming,
Cried, "I died for thee!"

Chorus.
Saviour, Saviour, hear my humble cry.

Let me at a throne of mercy
Find a sweet relief;
Kneeling there in deep contrition,
Help my unbelief.

Trusting only in Thy merit,
Would I seek Thy face;
Heal my wounded, broken spirit,
Save me by Thy grace.

Tune.—Men of Harlech (N.B.B. 251).

6 Soldier, rouse thee! War israging,
God and fiends are battle waging,
Every ransomed power engageth,
Break the tempter's spell.
Dare we still be fondly dreaming,
Wrapt in ease and worldly submersion,
While the multitudes are streaming
Downwards into hell?

Chorus.
Through the world resounding.

Lord, we come, and from Thee never
Self nor earth our hearts can sever;
Thine entirely, Thine for ever,
We will fight and die.
To a world of rebels dying,
Heaven and hell and God defying,
Everywhere we'll still be crying,
"Will ye perish—why?"

COMING EVENTS.

Harvest Festival Specials.

COLONEL KYLE (Chief Secretary) .. PETROLIA
LIEUT-COLONEL GASKIN BRANTFORD
BRIGADIER SOUTHALL STRATFORD
STAFF-CAPT. AND MRS. MILLER BARRIE

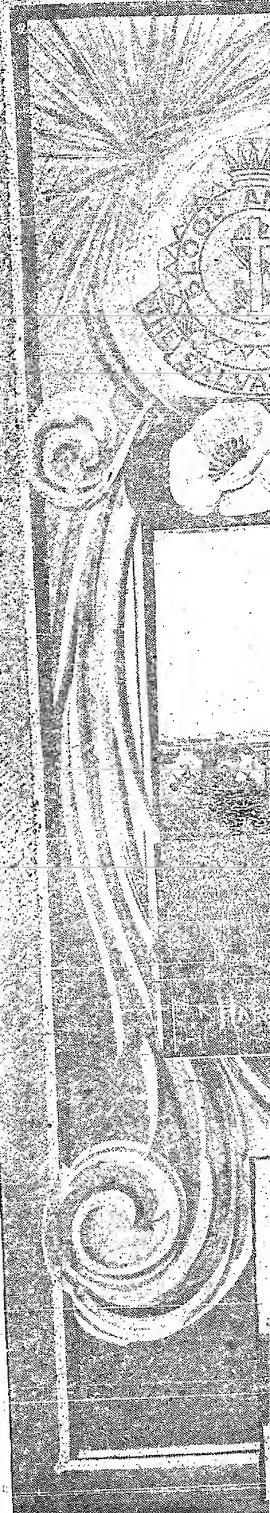

Territorial Headquarters Specials.

STAFF-CAPT. AND MRS. HAY, Lippincott Sept.
16th;
LIEUT-COLONEL GASKIN, Paris, Oct. 6th and 7th;
T. H. Q. MALE QUARTETTE, Bowmanville, Harvest Festival Sunday.

WANTED!—STENOGRAPHERS.

There are a few vacancies at Headquarters, Toronto, for young people who are qualified Shorthand and Typists; also for improvers who have not become thoroughly competent. Young people of either sex, children of officers or soldiers, are liberty to apply. Write to
The Chief Secretary,
29 Albert St., Toronto.

What shall we re

A PORT